A yearbook is as unique as the people who create it and the people it is created for.

Thinking of all that has gone past, we remember everything from cold, rainy mornings to joyous spring afternoons. We don't remember growing older or wiser, or changing, but that's exactly how we can tell it's happened.

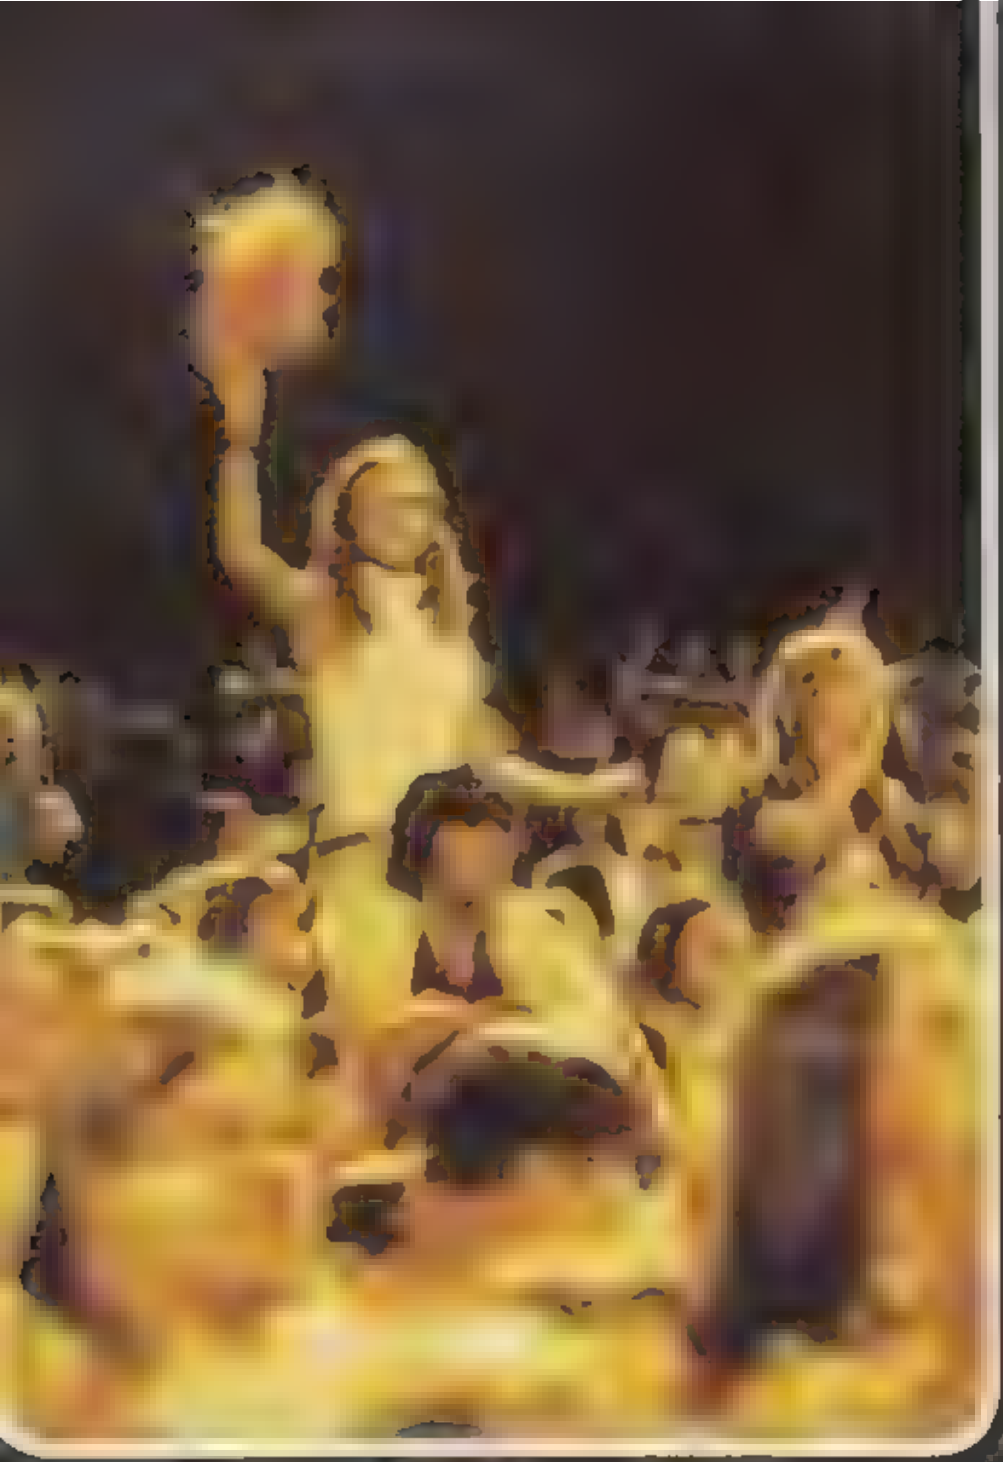

No more peeling sunburn, blaring radios or gritty sand in the bathing suit. The days come and go but the spirit lingers forever. Now we realize the nine month ritual has begun.

The Wranglerettes and Band tried to break the "worn-out tennis shoes" record and the football team put on pads. From here on things are work, work, work . . . Except on Fridays for pep-rallies, three-day weekends or Senior Skip Day.

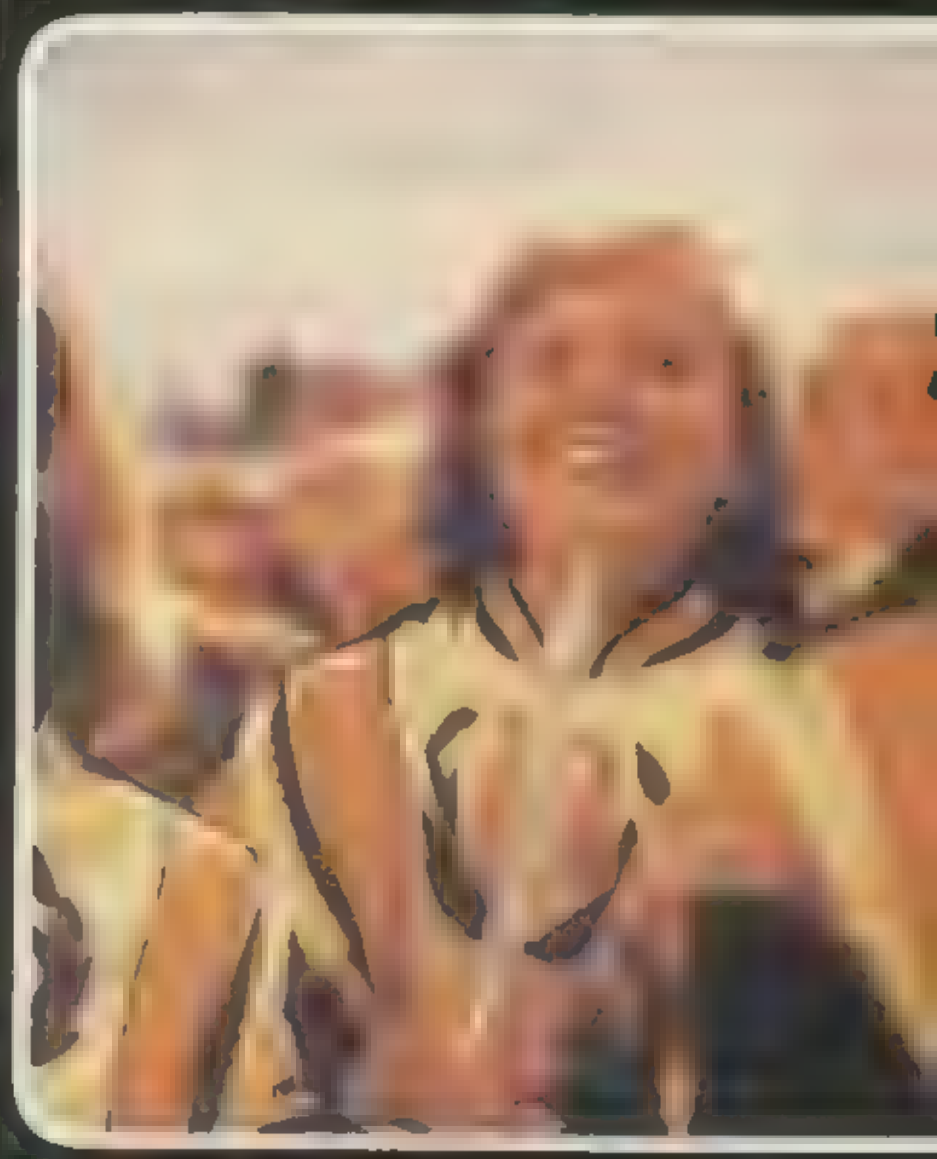

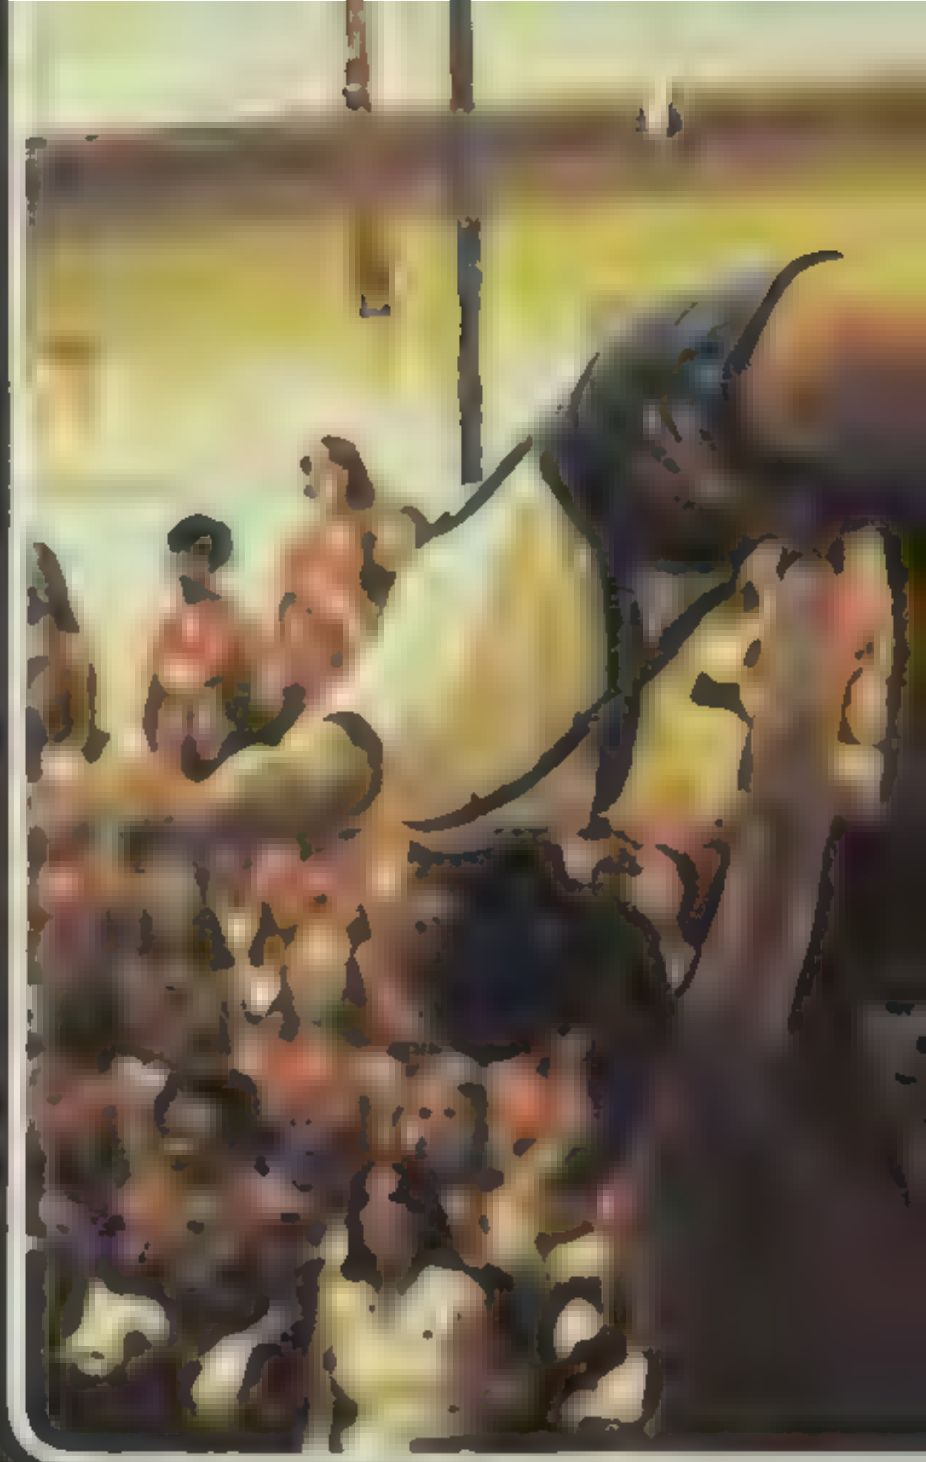

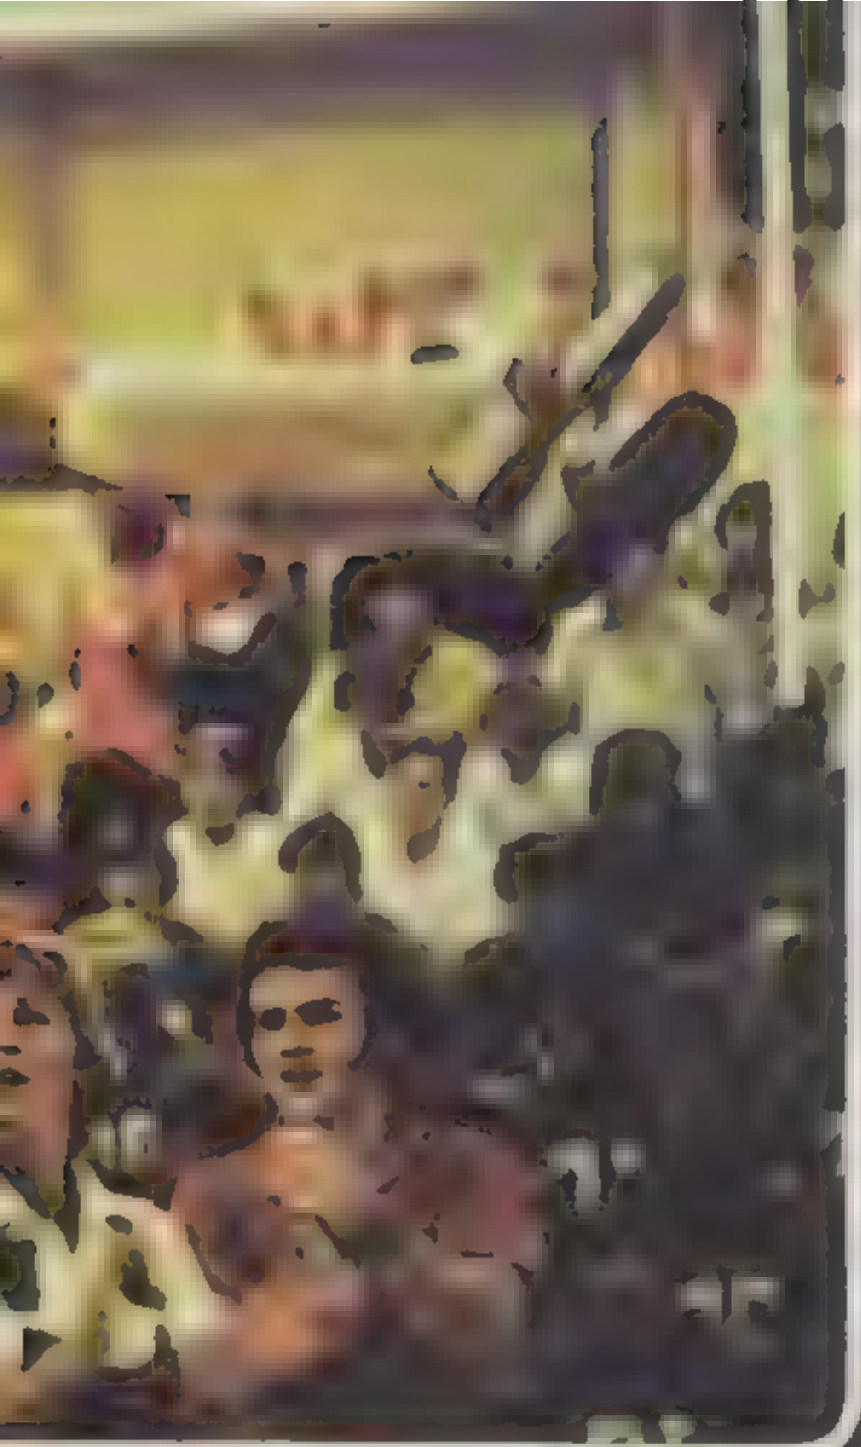

Here's an interesting fact: The 1997-98 season was an extraordinary one for the Dallas Sports Field, with 100,000 fans in attendance. The season's success was a result of the team's excellent coaching and the fans' support. The team's success was a result of the team's excellent coaching and the fans' support. Summertime, and the living is easy . . . The long days of school work and the frenzied anticipation of a two and one half month vacation had died, leaving Westchester students supplied with weeks of free time. Texas beaches drew a large portion of the population to their sandy shores with promises of surfing, skiing, and sailing, or just basking long hours in the semi-tropical sun. While many Houstonians opted to leave the Lone Star State for the cool mountains of Colorado or the picturesque towns of New England, the majority stayed home, profiting from the multitude of happenings in Houston and surrounding areas. Summer concerts provided a change of pace for some Westchester students who pilgrimaged as far away as the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, and Willie Nelson's ranch on Liberty Hill to hear their favorite musicians.

Lazy summer days rolled slowly by until, on August 25, a bell rang at 8:10 a.m. which brought all activities to a screeching halt. A new school day was beginning and another summer was gone.

August 22, 1975, the class of '79 was introduced to Westchester. The Freshmen focused on a year filled with new friends and experiences. Orientation consisted of introductions to student council members, faculty, and administrators. They were told about the school and shown around to their classes. Freshmen listened as ninth grade principal Hal Lambert explained about the school and the many activities at Westchester. Early dismissals, blue slips, homeroom and tardies would become a way of life. The year became a reality as each student entered under the arches and began the first of four years at Westchester.

Tense excitement gripped the crowded gym as stragglers attempted to climb packed bleachers to sit with friends. The occasion was a pep-rally; an excuse for shorter classes a show of school spirit.

As the band struck up the Wildcat Fight Song, the football players sauntered to their places in the stands. Wranglerettes performed their hand motions while Senior Boys club entered dressed in hilarious costumes, executing antics to entertain the rest of the student body.

Each class had their particular mark, whether it was the rolled up pants and crazy socks of the Juniors, or the "Wildcat" sunglasses of the sophomores. Freshmen, being new to the school contributed by arriving in mass, and attempting to cheer the loudest. Yes Westchester pep-rallies had something to offer for almost everyone.

Take 25 aspiring actors, 50 choir people, 20 confused cast members, six football players and a pig; put them in a classroom designed for 30 students, and what do you have? Backstage at "Lil' Abner." While waiting to go on stage during the production nights of the play, cast members stayed in the stuffy, semi-darkness of S-D1. Threatened with their lives, or worse, should their voices rise over a hushed whisper, actors communicated with exaggerated hand motions or pen and paper. S-D2 was set up as a make-up room, and there, amidst a constant fog of powder and hairspray, Sue Powers transformed cast majors into convincing old men and women, or youthful-looking Dogpatch hill-billies. The court-yard in front of the E-Building provided an ideal stage for rehearsing dancers and singers. Before each performance, cast and crew members gathered in the court-yard for the customary "Break-a-Leg" ceremony. Break-a-leg is the theatrical term for good-luck. Performance ends found cast members hugging and congratulating each other on a fine production

one time and

The night was December 5. As the lights went down in the auditorium, a most amazing spectacle began. The orchestra struck up a perfectly executed overture which added a professional touch to Westchester's musical extravaganza, Lil' Abner. With a cast and crew of over one hundred, the Drama department was aided by the orchestra and choir in Westchester's first effort at a large scale musical. Members representing every aspect of life at Westchester, participated in the play to make it a most entertaining production. Lil' Abner required over six weeks of rehearsing, and the expert direction of drama teacher Lockie Roberts, and student director Greg Bailey to make it a true success. The scenery, designed by the art department combined with acting, singing and musical accompaniment to make Lil' Abner a first-class effort.

Our time has come ...

To move on and make room for another class. The four years at Westchester gave us all more assurance, pride and experience. We became friends among the happiness, sadness, triumphs, and defeats of high school. We learned to share and to help others. Behind us, we leave the bonds of adolescence and memories of the class of 1976 lurking in the shadows of the arches. Life at Westchester has become a part of us all. Not knowing what the future holds, remembering the good and bad times, we move on, for, our time has come.

For many students, concerts represented the ultimate in musical enjoyment. Concerts presented students with an event where students could see for themselves the entertainers that they could normally only hear from seemingly lifeless speakers. At concerts, though, the "speakers" fill with a fervor for life that cannot be experienced any other way. Plastic records or tapes cannot provide the same thrill as a dynamic stage show.

After

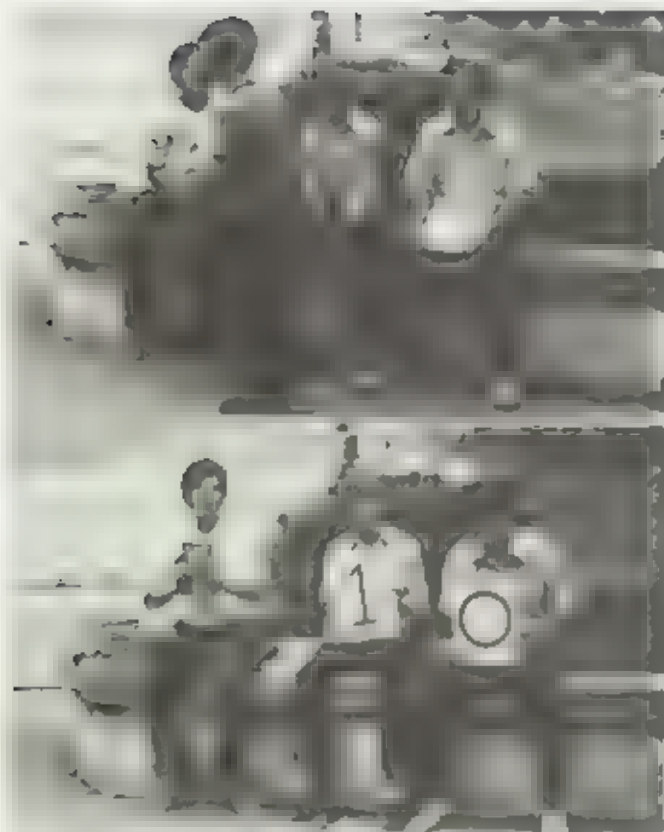

It's three thirty. School is out. The masses scatter. Where to? Westchester students participated in a multitude of activities after the bell. The majority of juniors and seniors worked at various jobs around the community. Underclassmen had clubs and sports to occupy their idle hours between school days. Monday nights were set aside for Young Life meetings. Young Life assemblies ranged anywhere from fifty to a hundred and seventy-five members. Singing, games and skits with an overall religious theme comprised the evening. Weekends were filled with movies, parties, shopping and Sunday afternoon get-togethers at Bear Creek Park. With the coming of spring, the sales of kites boomed in the metropolitan Houston area. Ranging from plastic bird-like models to those of the home-made variety, kites visible in the sky had infinite shapes and sizes. Frisbies appeared in droves as students frequented beaches and parks.

The Book

On the Inside

Through the routine of everyday life, students found the desire for adventure. Waterballooning, chinese fire-drills, tennis shoe stomping and the silent attack upon innocent cyclists with an over pressured fire extinguisher were all revived in full. Although the above were highly impractical during school hours and ample grounds for expulsion, students found other ways to amuse themselves. Juvenile pranks, such as groups of students posted at toilets in an attempt to flood the school by flushing in perfect synchronization, or clogging water faucet fountains so as to completely cover the thirsty student with water when he attempted to get a drink of water all proved far too immature for Westchester students. Through the small feats and ideas devised, life at Westchester was made a little more bearable.

In an era when blue jeans are at the height of fashion, a formal might seem a bit out of place. However, students at Westchester spent much time and money this year alone to put on these dressed occasions. With the end of football season, formals began to emerge. Each class and various organizations planned one of these lavish affairs. Although not school affiliated, formals acted as an integral part of high school life.

Once again, the blood drive returned to Westchester with a big success. The drive was planned for December by the student council, and from the tremendous student response, was asked to return again in January to accommodate Westchester donors. Carnation day is a tradition at Westchester. Usually falling at the end of February or the beginning of March, Carnation Day provides a break from the monotonous class schedule which occurs after the Christmas holidays. The flowers are sold each year as a fund raising project to finance the Junior Class prom.

Wildcat cheerleaders started off with a bang. Their week spent at cheerleading camp at SMU was well rewarded. They brought home three first place ribbons, two second place ribbons and the "spirit stick."

The sponsor, Mrs. Rose Lewis, can certainly be proud of her enthusiastic cheerleaders. Their spirit never lessened — win or lose. Wildcat fans anticipated victory every game with the help of our cheerleaders.

Head cheerleader was Doug Eastland with Kim Rambeau serving as alternate.

Runthrough

Being a member of the Runthrough Club is a combination of talent and time. Hours are spent on designing and painting the signs used for the football games. Two signs were made each game with one group assigned to each runthrough. Although these posters were the major concern of the club it was not their only activity. They also participated in Art Department projects.

Tri-Theta

Athletes were well supported by Tri Theta. Senior women aroused the needed spirit with the painting and hanging of signs, the wrapping of houses and the making and giving of goodies for the players. This club met every Sunday to paint signs for the school and during the week the girls got together to make signs for the players houses. Grocery stores were raided by Tri Theta and stripped of their cheapest toilet paper along with any goodies for the athletes

Senior Boys

Unlimited antics were a major concern of the Senior Men. This club often met every weeknight in top secrecy planning out various strategy for the upcoming game. Not only did these men brighten up every pep rally with their humorous skits they formed their own cheering section at all the games. A couple of their harmless escapades included filling the Stratford gym with orange helium balloons during a pep rally and adding a "sweet" aroma to a Memorial pep rally.

Beginning three weeks before school started, the Band averaged twenty to twenty-five hours a week on practice alone. It was this, plus determination and skill, that enabled them to participate in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade. The Band raised funds for the trip through selling candy, bumper stickers, McDollars, tickets to a jazz concert and raffle tickets on a 1975 Chevelle.

Under the guidance of new directors, Tom Bennet and Gary Glover, the Westchester Band carried through with its tradition of giving exciting, polished halftime performances. Three band members, Juniors Bob Einkauf and Richard Fish and Sophomore Jane Fenton made all-state band.

The Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade was not the only event the Band was involved in. Additional activities included the U.S. contests in concert and solo ensemble, the Astroworld Marching Contest and competition as All-State Band in February. Hours of practice after school and on weekends culminated in halftime performances at football games. Among the more notable of these performances was at the Memorial game, where Wranglerettes impersonated life-size toy soldiers as an observance of the Bicentennial. They then joined the Band in forming the letters USA.

When not practicing, the girls sold Christmas cards, candy, and calendars to raise money for their trip to New York. Not only were the Wranglerettes in the Parade but they did a routine on the Howard Cosell Show.

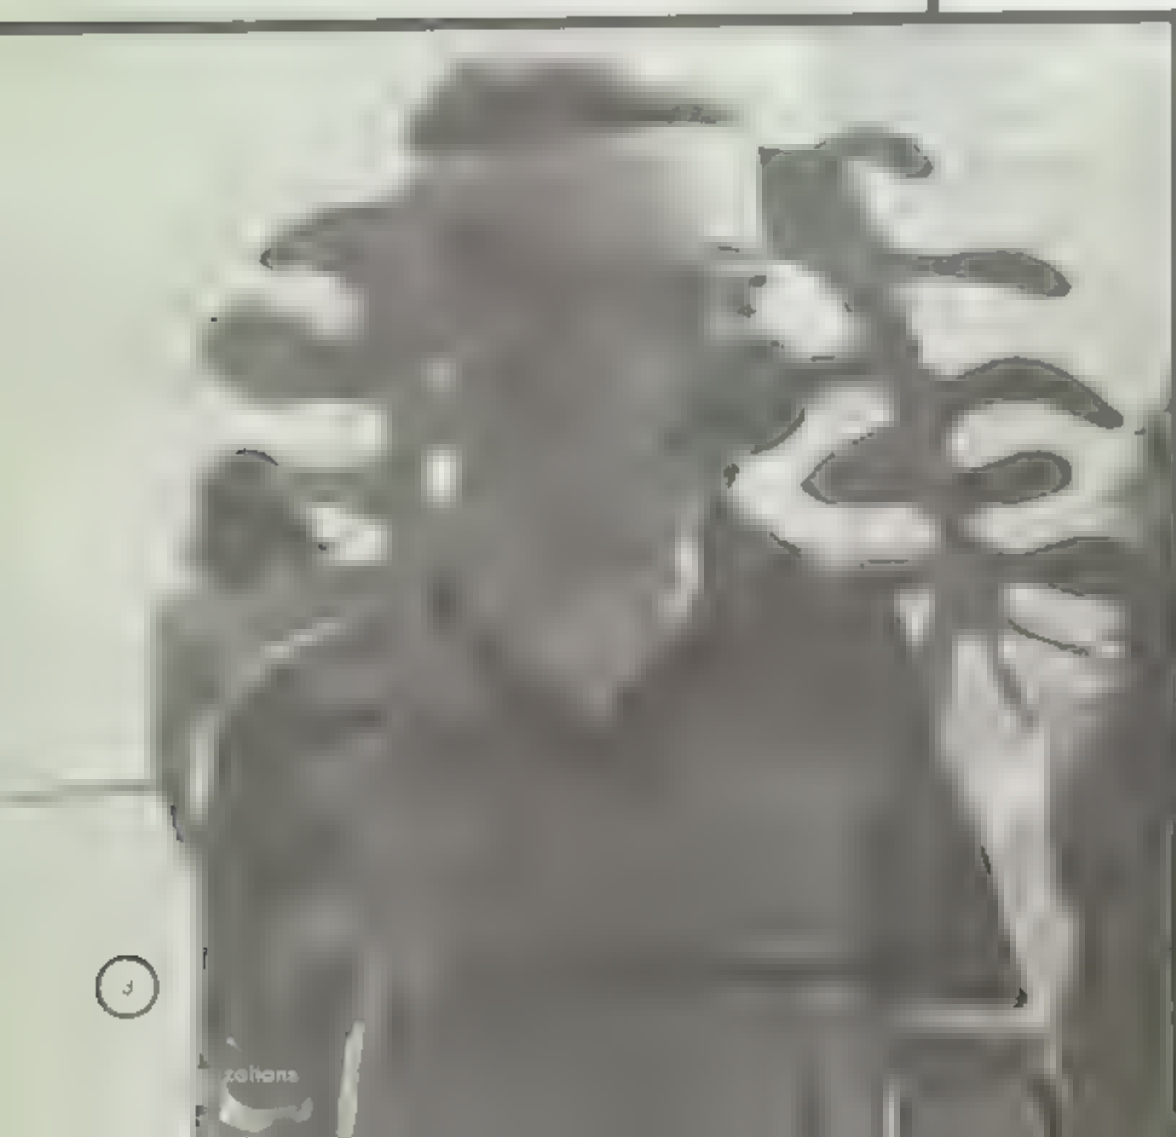

Under the direction of strong Executive Officers, the Student Council accomplished many of its traditional duties in an organized manner. The year began with Freshman orientation and elections and an organizational meeting to discuss the Several weeks later the student body pulled together to donate over 170 units of blood in the annual blood drive. Although the donations were limited to Juniors and Seniors aged 17 and up, the bloodmobile had to turn down many students because the scheduled 2 day blood drive was not enough time to get to all the students who wanted to donate. During Christmas time classes created door decorations and Council members dressed as Santa and his elves judged the doors and awarded prizes to the winners. The remainder of the year the Council involved itself with projects concerning student body matters such as library policies and campus clean-up.

Thespians

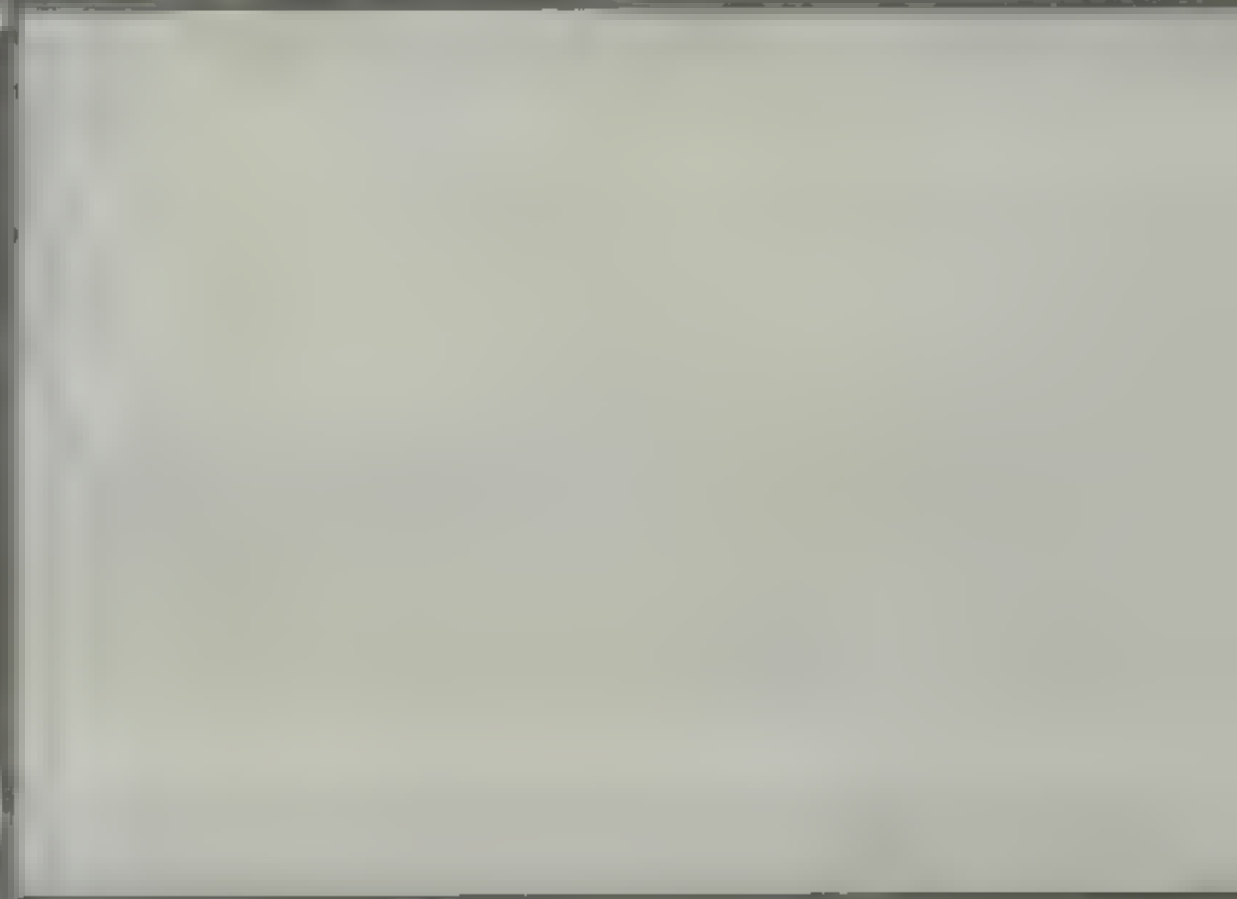

Thespians is devoted to recognizing and promoting outstanding achievement in high school theatre. To become a member in the club, each person was required to work a minimum of three shows and have spent at least a hundred hours doing stage work, acting or other related activities. In essence, the club is an honor society for outstanding dramatists.

The local club is associated with the National Thespian Association. This nationwide group contains all two, three, and 4A schools.

The organization sponsored and planned a One-Act play night. Many of the plays presented there were performed at UIL contest held late in March.

3 Randy Lacy, All-State delegate, smiles in the choir room to be the first one to sing.

Hours of hard work, patience and practice have combined to make this year's choir among the best ever to represent Westchester. With twelve members in Regional choir and five in Area, Linda Spain, Mike Underhill, Randy Lacy, and Rusty Jones, it is no surprise that the school's first All-State delegate was chosen, Randy Lacy.

Many choir members, including director Mary Jo Harvey, took part in the drama production of Li'l Abner. The Christmas season provided the choir with many opportunities to sing outside the immediate area. Performances at the Alley Theater and the Historic Society were well received by large audiences. The Christmas program, "A Portrait of Christmas," was given prior to the holidays. Later in December, the chorale was invited to participate in a Christmas program on television.

The officers for the year were Stephanie Bower, President; Mike Fruit, Vice President; Christine Goodhue, Librarian; Mary Harrison, Treasurer; Peter Lawrence, Historian; and Jonathan Ingraffia, Chaplain.

Keyettes, a service club with a membership of 70 sophomore, junior, and senior girls, had a very successful year. The club sponsored a Halloween party at Depelchian Faith Home and entertained the kids with skits and goodies. Later the club adopted "Grandparents" from a nearby Rest Home and entertained the Senior Citizens at Christmas and various other times throughout the year. Other projects included work with the Key Club and volunteer work helping non-profit organizations as well as occasional social activities such as sponsoring dances and fund drives. As a member of the South Texas Soccer Association, the A, AB, and B teams of the Westchester Soccer Club faced competition from seven other teams in their respective leagues. Practice was held every Tuesday and Thursday prior to the game played on the weekend. Club members gained further knowledge through visits to career information workshops sponsored by the Harris County Medical Careers Association at the University of Houston and Baylor College of Medicine.

Science Fiction

The bulk of LeWitt's papers of Science Fiction Society meetings dealt with discussions of authors and new books. Members also published their quarterly magazine, FAN STAFF. Concerned with interplanetary cooperation and culture, Society members contributed original stories and reviews of books and movies. Highlighting the year was ANTROPOIDS, a novel about a society where people work to be "less" and a revolution made that has more human characteristics than they do, causing them to revolt.

Members of Future Homemakers of America found themselves busier this year than ever before. Participants, who needed at least one economics course to join the club, continued the tradition to raise money for their events through the sale of candy. The proceeds enabled the homemakers to enjoy social affairs such as, Daddy Date Night, Beau Night and FHA Bake Contest and an ice cream social. In addition, they provided valuable services like the donation and making of 200 Christmas stockings for hospital patients and a march for polio.

As usual the girls had their annual FHA formal dance. In preparation for this they had a guest speaker on beauty, a demonstration of "Today's Hairstyles" and a formal-wear fashion show put on by the Whipple Tree.

This year, the local AFS chapter sponsored two students, Paivikki (Vikki) Mikkonen from Finland and Jean Paul Cazanave from Chile. To support these students the chapter sponsored a bond drive and the AFS talent show. The Americans Abroad program, which sends American students out of this country, this year sent Dana Dale to Japan for the winter program. Upon returning, the students are expected to share their experiences with the student body.

Debbie Mase and Stewart Wood had final applications sent to New York for consideration in the Americans Abroad program. Applying for the spring program, Debbie was sent to Costa Rica early in February.

Despite significant setbacks, the Westchester debate squad, under the direction of advisor Dianne Johnson, showed their forensic prowess by achieving widespread fame and success. Advanced debater Robert Draper said, "This year, we had a particularly young squad as well as a small one. We also had to cope with an enormous topic that was easily the toughest I'd faced in three years."

This didn't seem to affect the Westchester chapter of the National Forensic League, however. The squad placed high in every tournament in Pittsburgh.

Squad President Wesley Parsons stated, "Westchester was the powerhouse in Texas debate this year." Junior Marc Noland confidently added, "I think next year's squad will continue this year's characteristic cohesive strength and debating superiority." Considering the consistency of Westchester's debate squad over the years, this will be inevitable.

Times of change

The Volleyball team encountered a few changes this year that had a direct effect on them. The most significant change was their playing season. Previously, volleyball played district in February and State-Finals in late April. However, due to a new rule, District was moved up to September, giving the team only a couple of weeks to prepare themselves for District competition.

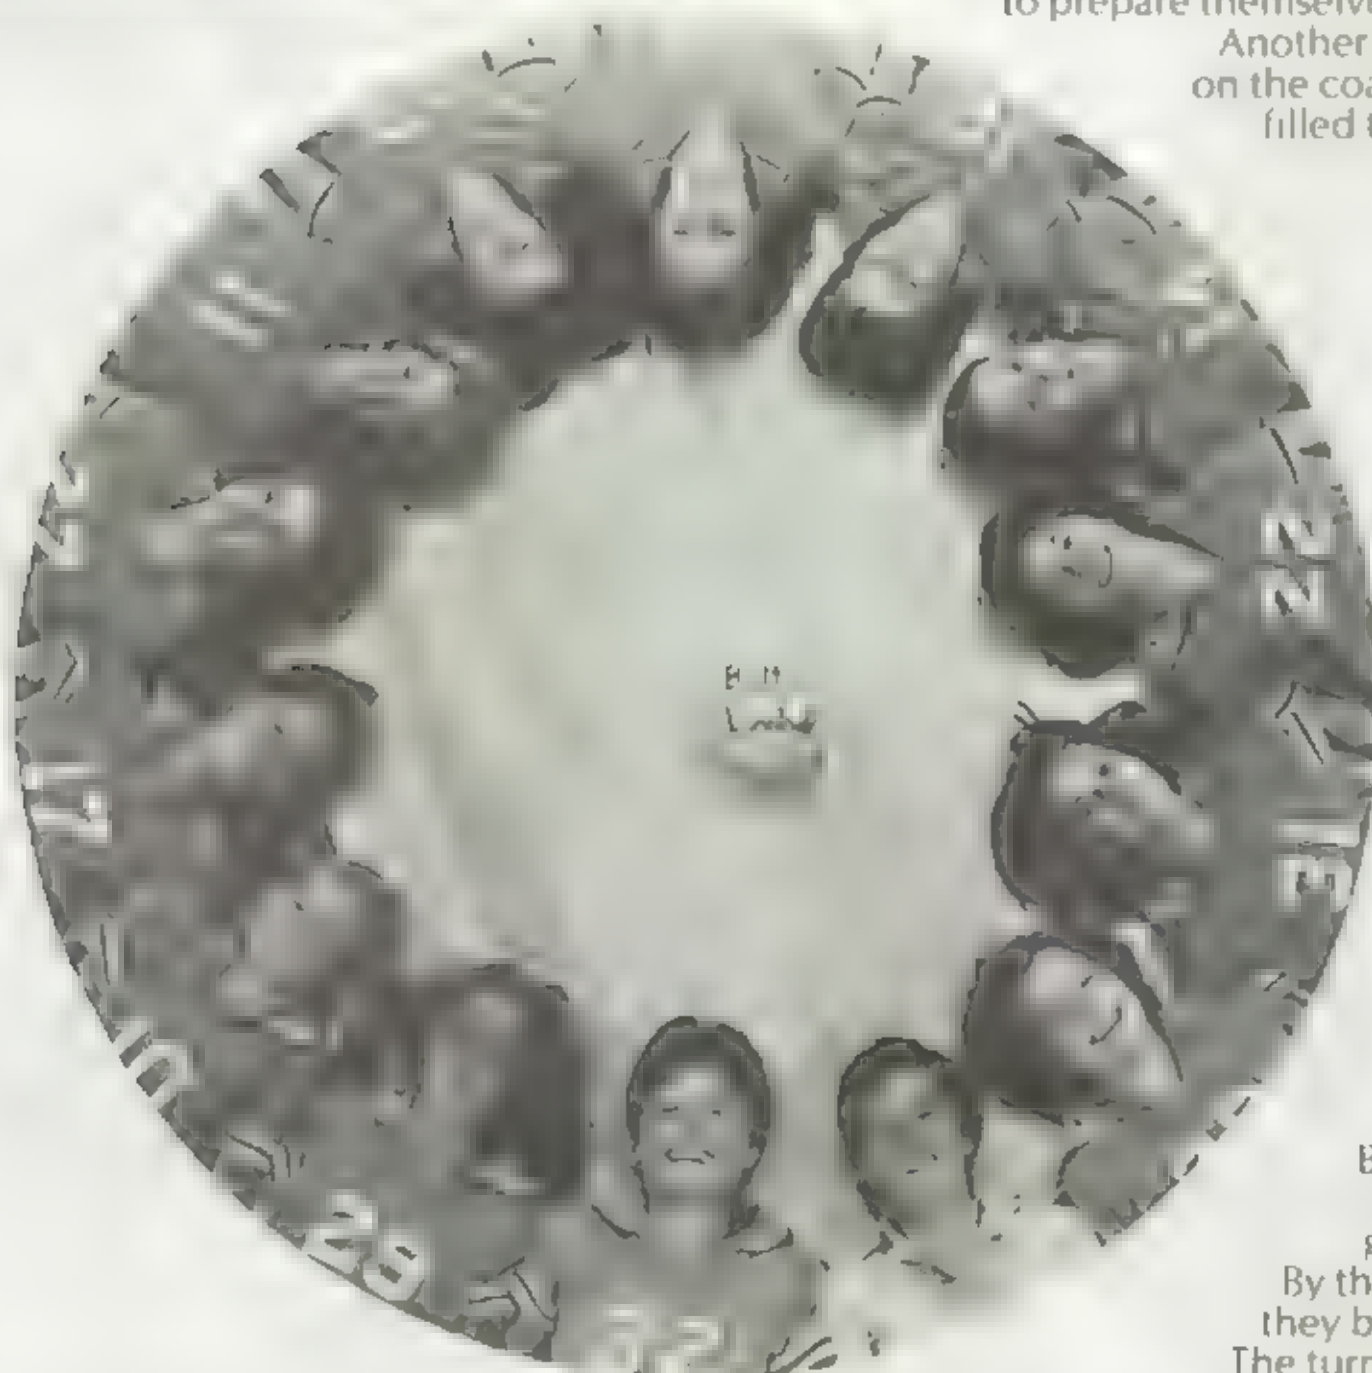

Another apparent change was seen on the coaching staff. Mrs. Janie Bolt filled the vacancy as head coach.

Miss Carol Leobold, assistant coach, had Junior Varsity responsibilities, and together they trained the inexperienced Freshman team. With emphasis placed on conditioning and skills, the Coaches led their teams to many victories.

Because Volleyball was the first team to start district play, the other school sports had to schedule themselves around the Volleyball team. Volleyball made full advantage of this with practice lasting three hours or longer.

Led by captains Lisa Burgher and Julie Bighouse, Varsity started off slow but gradually built momentum.

By the second round of District they became strong competitors. The turning point for the team was the explosive game against the team's biggest rival - Stratford. The win seemed to send the team in the right direction.

Finish with a bang

Varsity playing must have effected the Junior Varsity's playing, because the season started off depressingly slow. However, the team was not to be beaten in the second round. They were tied for first place in District.

The team entered the Alvin Junior Varsity Tournament where they reached the semi-finals before losing to the final winners, Lamar Consolidated.

Although height, an important factor on a volleyball team, was not exhibited by the players. They overcame this obstacle and surprised many of their opponents with a strong offense.

At 7:00 in the morning, the average Westchester student is trying to get themselves out of bed and ready for school. Just at that time of the morning, the Freshman Volleyball team was already hard at work perfecting their playing skills.

The Freshmen entered the Alvin Tournament in which they placed fourth. This year's freshman players gained valuable experience which will help them in the future. A number of Freshmen showed great promise and should prove to be great assets to future teams.

Cats
versatility

The football team, consisting of non-innovative opponents, is shown in action.

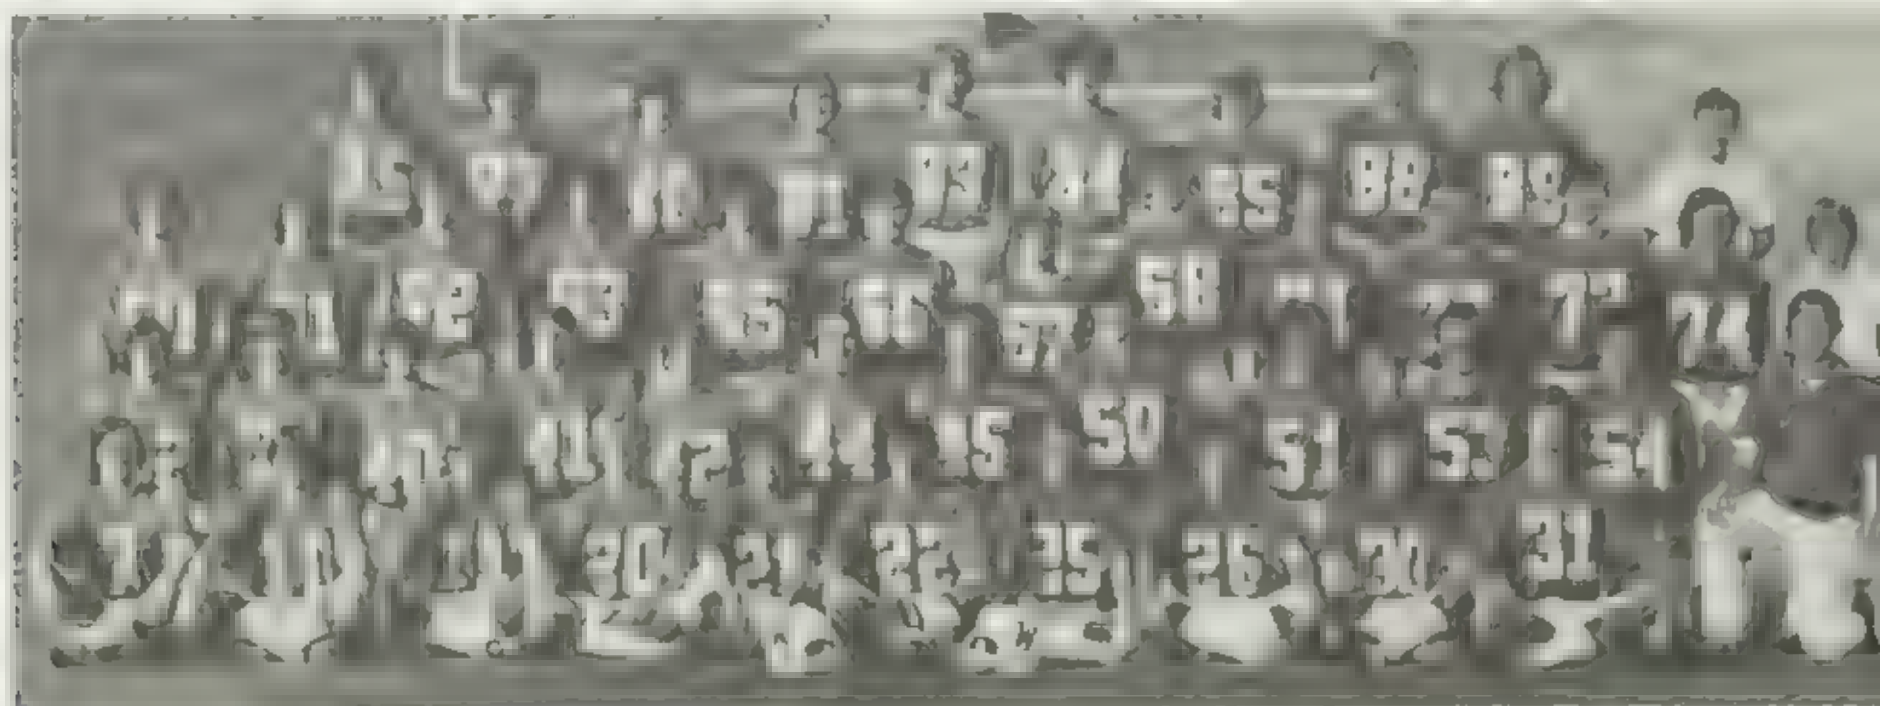

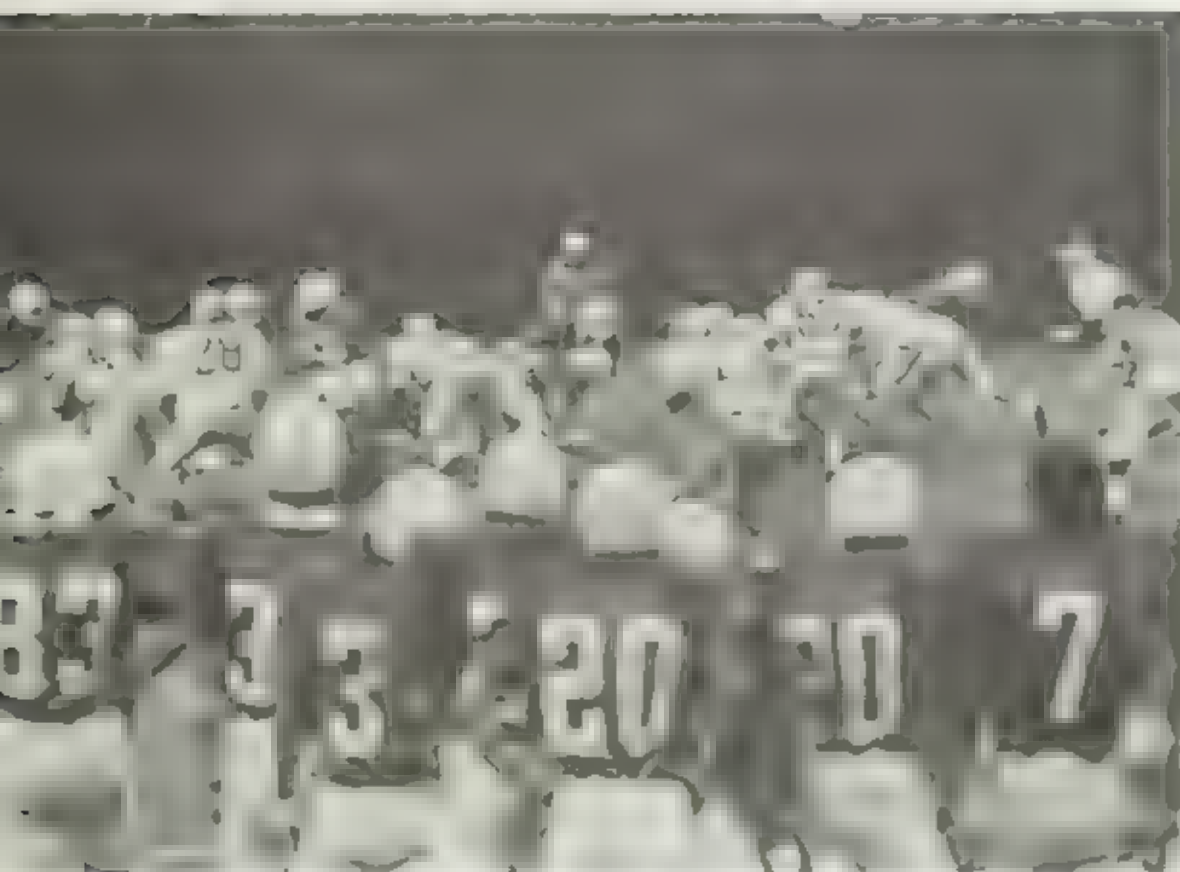

Football, whether recognized or not, is the undeclared national sport. It is able to elicit the enthusiasm in which crowds enjoy, from jubilant cheering to the spirited halftime activities. The discipline, training, and stubborn determination are found in every Westchester football player. We have been the victors and the defeated but it is done as a team. No win can be accredited to any one individual, only to the entire group. True teamwork must be the ideal of a combined effort, not personal glory. Through sports, students develop physically, academically, and socially. They learn to accept their weaknesses and proficiencies of others. By putting their separate talents they give their time, ability, and energy to the school. This is true for all sports, not only football.

For the Westchester Wildcats, football began last spring with monotonous personal training. It continued through the summer and finally reached its climax with the 1975 Varsity season. Performing under the instructive and constructive criticism of Charles Dexter and Company, the Wildcats finished with a 6-4 record. To finish a strong second behind Conro. Even to the team's regret, they fell short of victories. Didn't come easy. Coach in hard work, sweat, and constant drill in order to perfect technique. It is this dedication that makes a successful season a reality.

The Wildcats started off the season on the right foot by stomping Baytown Sterling, 16-0, in a non-district battle. Going into the game as 7 point underdogs, the cats emerged on top mostly due to the superb effort of defense. Brian Ruez earned the Play of the Week with his 29 yard touchdown run at the end of the first half. This win over Baytown, ranked number ten in the greater Houston area, was the first time in three years the Wildcats out played the Rangers.

The Wildcats continued their winning streak by beating Pasadena, 14-7. Senior quarterback Bob Ramsey scored both touchdowns on runs of 21 and four yards. Mark Hutchison set up the first score on a fumble recovery at the Eagle 21.

Our 'Cats continued their winning ways by overpowering Spring Woods 14-0 in the district opener.

Although losing two fumbles, one in the end zone and the other on the Tiger two yard line, the Wildcats finally found the handle on the ball, and traveled 47 yards for a score in the third quarter. With 1:54 left in the game, Sophomore Andy Wieman rifled a pass to classmate Mark Lineberry for a 46 yard touchdown play to seal the victory for the 'Cats.

Revenge was never sweeter! The Wildcats, after losing to rival Stratford last year, bounced back to claw out a 10-7 victory over the Spartans.

The game was tied 7-7 until the fourth quarter, but the Wildcats rolled over Stratford in the second half, picking up 15 first downs to Stratford's two and scoring 10 points to the Spartan's 0. The Dixie-land Defense held Stratford to a mere 10 first downs the entire game, and permitted the Green to execute only 16 plays through four quarters.

Bob Ramsey kicked the winning field goal, a 21 yarder, with 3:19 remaining in the contest.

The team considered this one of the more important games of the season and were pleased with the final outcome.

Dixieland defense - indestructible

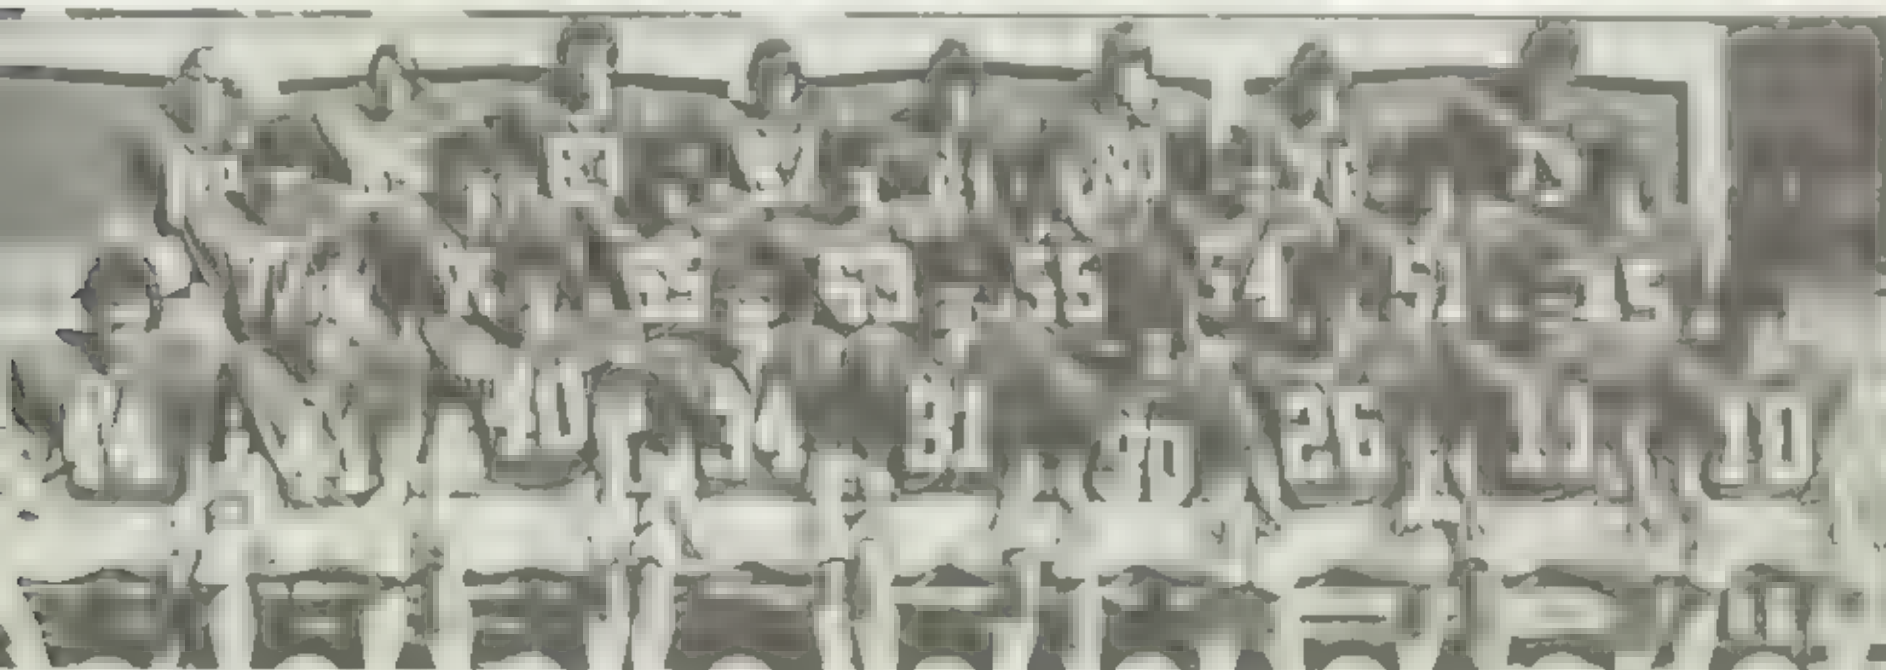

The Varsity season was like a never ending battle. A battle that lasted right down to the last game of the year against Memorial. Westchester was not to be denied this one last win against the Mustangs. The Wildcats scored 19 hard earned points to Memorial's dismal nothing.

Early in the season Westchester was ranked number seven in the greater Houston area with the help of All-District players, Richard Frazee, Randy Kinsel, and Murphy Graham with Mike Warden second team defense. Team captains for the year were Bob Ramsey, Richard Frazee and Randy Kinsel.

JV continues the winning tradition

With no big attendance, no half time show, and no big money, the Junior Varsity football team played the way to a 5-3 district record. Although the Junior Varsity went unnoticed by most people, they played an important role in the shaping of Varsity. J.V. spent much of their practice time playing "live dummy" for the Varsity team.

The highlight of the season was the victory against Conroe. Although the JV's size and lack of Varsity's defense was their strongest asset.

Dribblers rebuild for District title

Better than expected' could have been the phrase used to describe the varsity team. Predicted to finish seventh out of nine teams the Cats surprised only the predictors when they finished a close second in the first round of district play

The team was basically young and inexperienced. With four seniors, and only two players with previous experience, the Cats concentrated on rebuilding the team. They spent many hard hours working on the fundamentals of the game. Each player possessed versatility in game strategy

Led by Captain Stan Hayes, the Cats became more consistent with each game. Stan pulled the team through many clutch situations, while Karl Schueler added inside strength. Eric Buescher and Carl Pocken provided strong rebounding power

Close game costs

At the end of the first round of district play, the Cats had suffered only two losses. The first defeat was to a powerful Spring Branch team. Then in a first place determining thriller before an unusually large crowd in the Coliseum, the Wildcats lost a close game to Spring Woods 47-43. The game was marked by outstanding performances by both teams. Stan Hayes and Joe Costello played extremely well for Westchester. The game, which neither team ever dominated, was played down to the last seconds, where Spring Branch emerged the victors.

JV puts forth the effort

After not playing outstanding pre-season games the Junior Varsity, coached by Larry Reap, seemed to have a turnabout in early district play with four consecutive wins. However their winning was soon broken by inconsistent playing. In this year's Spring Branch tournament the team won the consolation trophy. To have been a member of the Swim Team this year, it took loyalty, discipline, enthusiasm, and most important, a great deal of stamina. Along with the usual seventh period workouts, the swimmers had to attend early morning sessions three days a week, from 5:30 to 6:45, and on Saturdays. Coach Pete Payne instructed all Spring Branch District teams, thus eliminating any school rivalry.

Polly Pearson and Leslie Oppel were captain and co-captain of the largest girls team Westchester has ever had, while Craig Siegel was captain of the boys team.

Next fall, swimmers will no longer have to practice at the Dads Club. Due to the completion of the Natatorium, located behind Spring Woods High School, all Spring Branch schools will be able to enjoy both diving and swimming facilities in a new modern complex.

Tennis has established itself as one of the most popular recreational pastimes in the country. This was seen on the tennis team. Under the intense instruction of coach Sissy Skinner, no aspect of a player's game went unnoticed as she pointed out their strengths and their weaknesses. With state ranked players, Claire Roehm, Janet Combs, Tom Roscoe and Rocky Royer securing first or second place in both Boys and Girls Doubles and Singles became more of a reality for this year's team. As in other sports at Westchester, the main desire of the team was a defeat over rival team, Memorial.

Never in the history of West Chester has the Girls Golf team ever had so many enthusiastic players. In only three years, the team has grown from eight to nineteen active members. The team was coached by Doug White.

Returning letterman were Janet Schooley and Marty Grantham, seniors. Other top five contenders were Becky McWhorter, senior. Much of the competition in the district came from Memorial, Conroe, and Cylair. The team held their own tournament at Bear Creek Golf Course. They also attended tournaments at Humble and Elkins Lake.

A clock. A piece of machinery that ticks off the agony, stress, will power, and ultimately a trackster's life. Invariably, a victory over other competitors is often turned into a barrage of muttered words underneath the breath, because of a loss to the clock.

The boys and girls track teams had one goal — to be fastest on the track. Starting to work in January and ending in April, the competitors proved themselves by the degree of their self discipline.

The girls, led by Coach Debbie Pruitt and Co-captains Megan Harrington and Kim Rambeau, proved to be a spirited team but met with many frustrations. Likewise, Coach Ben Trcalek guided the boys to another season.

It took work, time, sweat, and determination. However, the true challenge in track is not in beating someone else, but yourself and that clock.

Sprinters seek speed

Sprinters do not acquire speed, they are born with it. However, they do acquire a certain form of their own. Michele Holderness, Jill Swinbank, Katie Mather, Carolyn Livesay, Robin Jones, Kim Rambeau, Paula Shryne, and Karvn Wooten excelled in sprint races for the girls. Sprinters for the boys included Johnny Ligon, Robert Livesay, Tim Horner, Scott Obrien, Brian Ruez, Kerry Kelley, and Steve Baldwin. Sprint events for both teams consisted of the 60, 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes, the 80, 120, and 330 yard hurdles, plus the 440 and 880 relays.

Distance demands endurance

Speed as well as endurance was the goal of the distance runners of both track teams. Distance events included the mile and 880 runs, plus the 440, 880, and mile relays. Runners for the boys were Cory Murphy, Newell Dutton, Brig North, Steve Baldwin, and Vince Ahearn. The girl's distance runners included Ann Campbell, Julie Beard, Kathy Ehlers, Gayle Hoyt, and Nancy Paseman.

Fielders provide points

In the field events, both teams had outstanding performers. Such as, Randy Kinsel in both shot and discus events, high jumper John Kranz, pole vaulters, Bryan Ruez, Lawrence Ligon, and Mike Gibson, and long jumper, David Benson. Field events for the girls were dominated by Karen Morgan, Julie LaRue and Carolyn Penczak in shot and discus, Megan Harrington, Robin Jones, and Terri King, long and triple jumpers and high jumpers, Nancy Elam, and Rhonda Reese. These people added vital points to their respective teams.

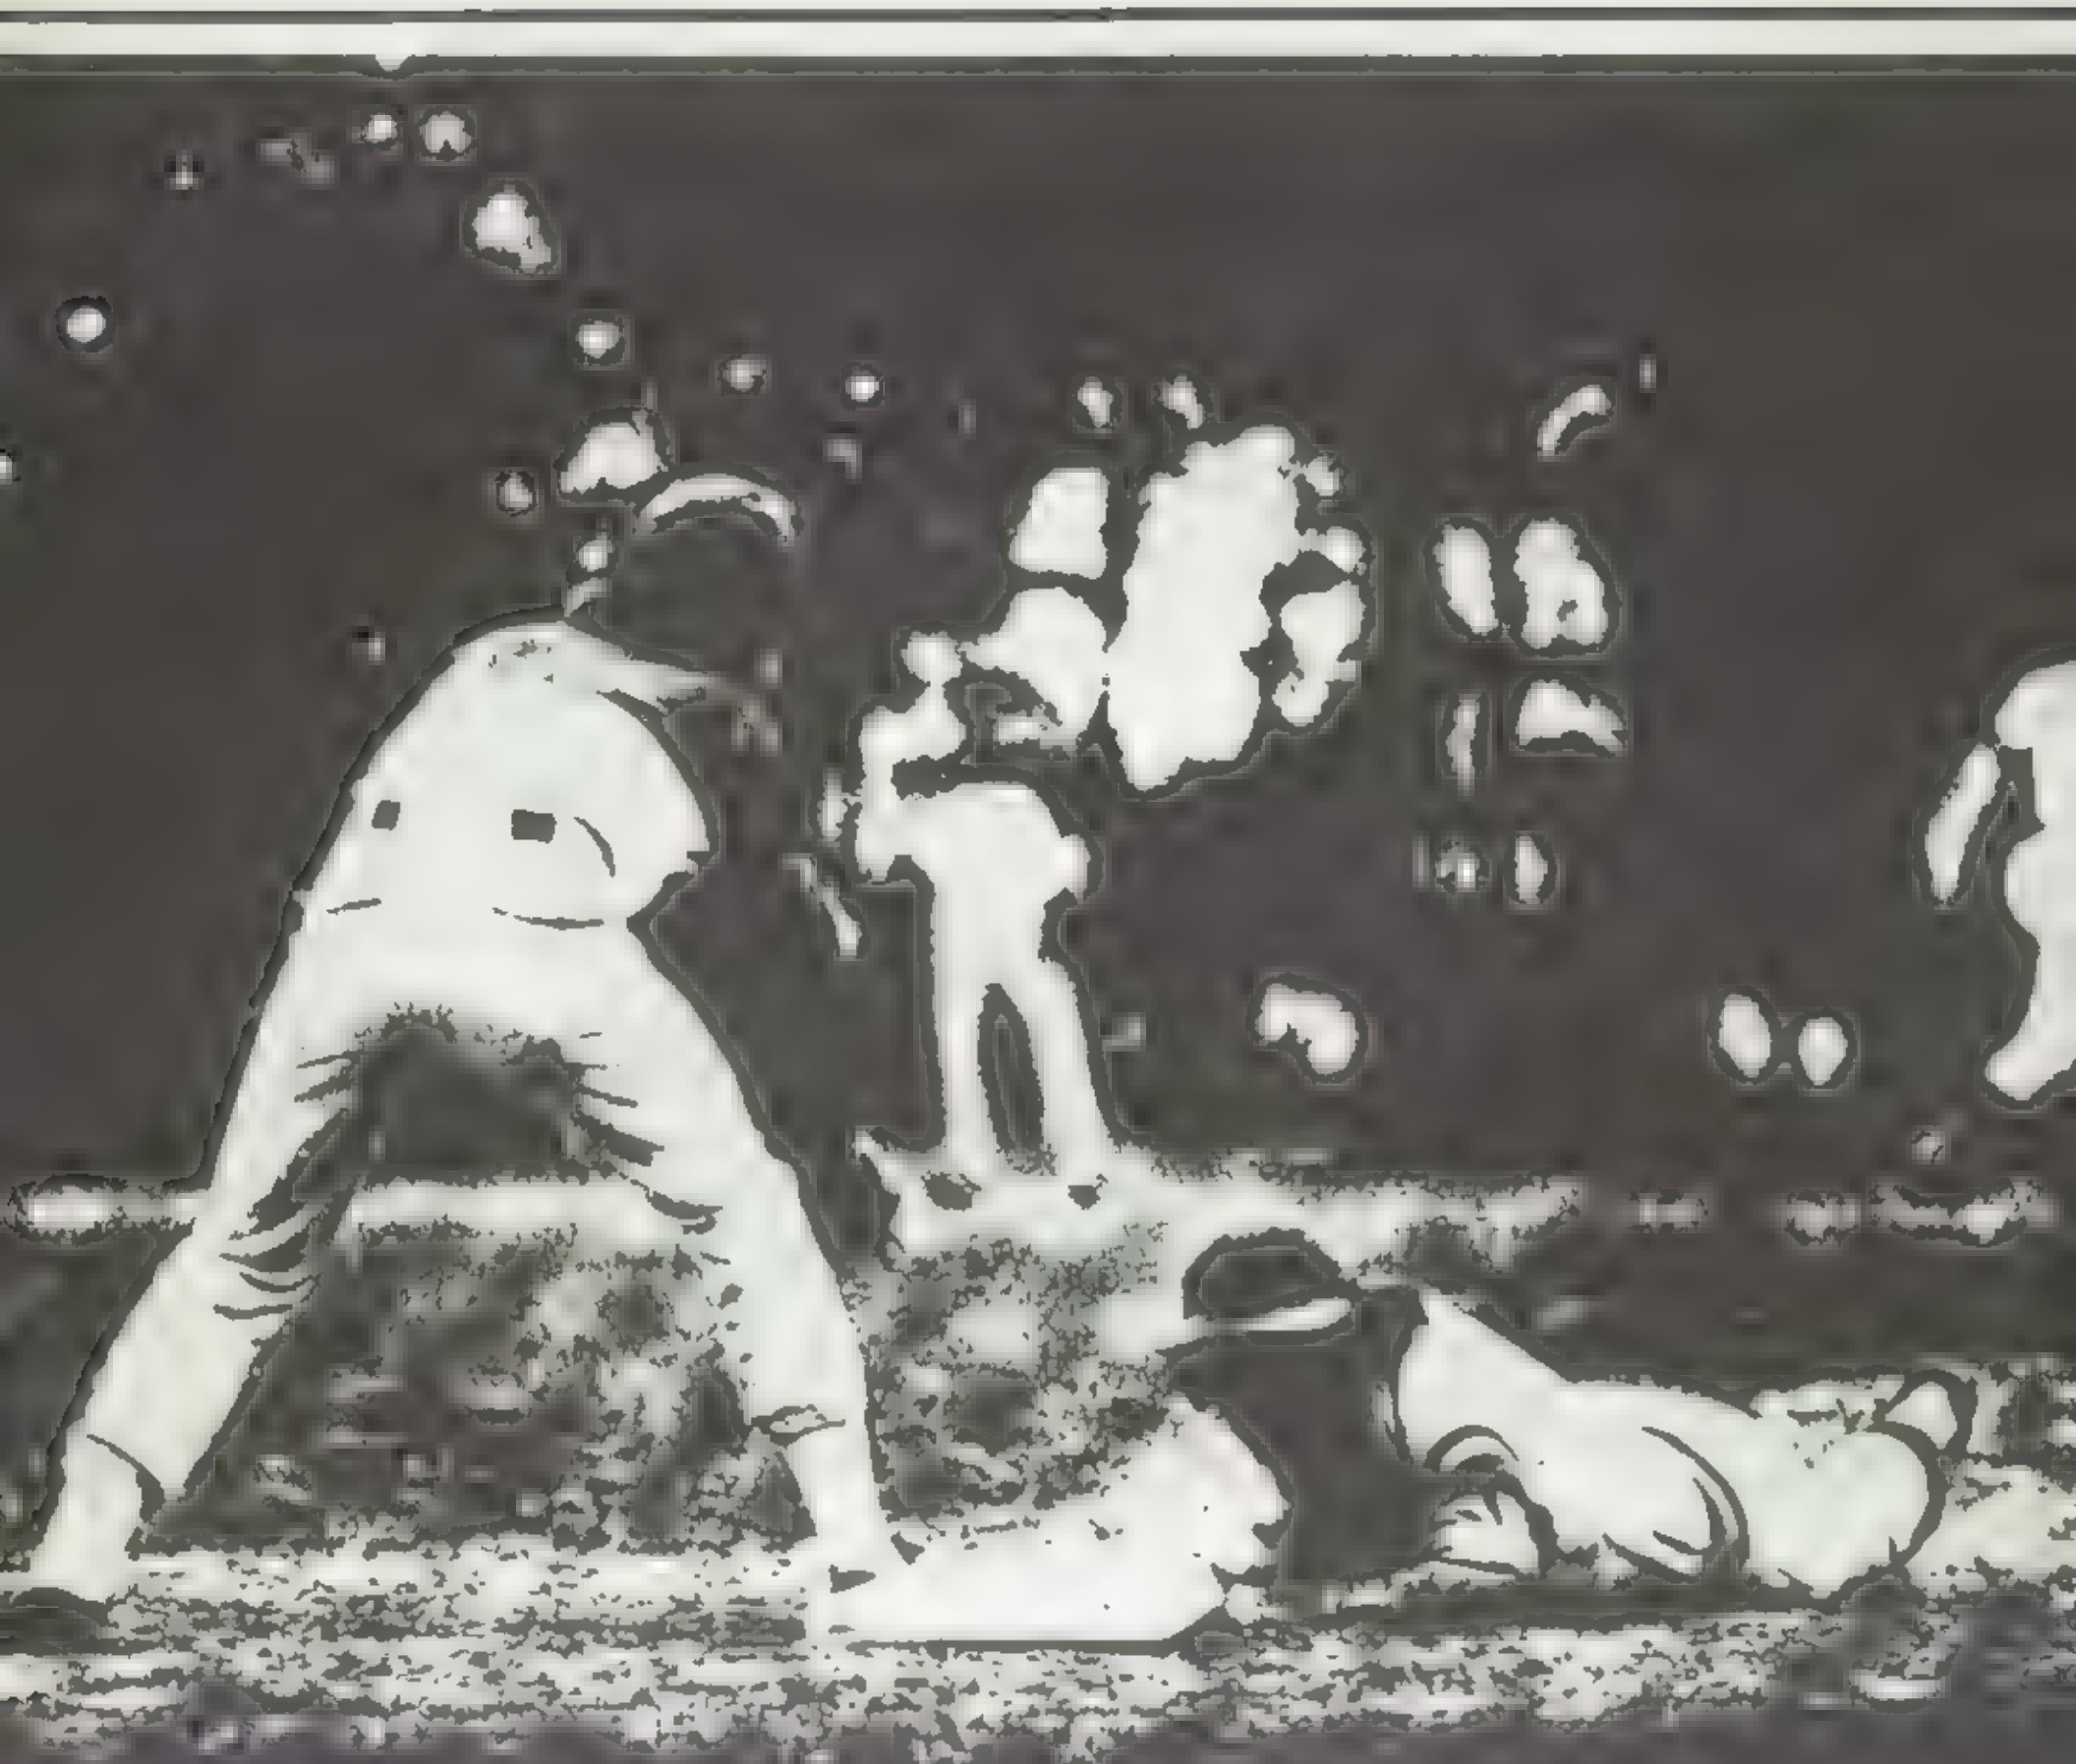

New coach breaks in new team

For the third year in a row the baseball team was under new leadership. Coach Tony Barcelona took responsibilities for this year's team. Under his direction the team hoped for a chance to win the district title. With a team of seven seniors, and eight returning varsity players, the Cats showed a great deal of improvement and experience over last year's team. Coach Barcelona conditioned his team by stressing the finer details of the game. The Cats also possessed more confidence in themselves and their teammates. So with these factors of team experience, improvement, and confidence the notion of winning district was not a far fetched idea.

Diamondman slide into district

Pitching and hitting were just a few of the strong points of the team. Four-year letterman, Gary Rutherford led the Wildcat pitching staff with his exceptional curve ball. Other key pitchers who rounded out the team included, Bob Milner, Rock Roberts, Chris Leiss. Another dominant trait of the players was the consistency of the hitting. The team, especially senior players, showed great strength, with a number of players hitting home runs in their first scrimmage against Milby

Girls' sports had still another dimension added to it. This year under U.I.I. rules, a cross country team was added to the girls' track program.

The team, led by Captain Linda Wantschek, was composed of fourteen girls, seven varsity and seven junior varsity. Each girl conditioned approximately three to five miles a day. Pre season and district races were one mile in length, and were held on every kind of terrain imaginable.

People behind the team

Probably the most unacknowledged and endless job on an athletic team was that of a team trainer, manager, or statistician. These students performed jobs the coaches and players were not able to do because of lack of time. Trainers duties ranged from taping and whirlpooling to working out leg cramps. Many of the trainers attended summer workshops where they learned the newest training techniques. Team managers were responsible for the playing equipment, and its overall upkeep. The statistician had the tedious task of recording the team's and individual player's statistics

From the Continental Congress to Watergate, America has come a long way in just 200 years. All over the country people are celebrating the Bicentennial in many different ways. Historic places were visited in record numbers, special license plates were printed up and souvenirs were sold by the hundreds.

Although Texas history does not go back as far as 200 years, she is celebrating just the same and Houston is no exception. A Bicentennial Commission was set up to plan and execute many different projects throughout the city. Fire hydrants were painted to look like soldiers and colonists. Schools had patriotic pep rallies and timely assignments were carried out. Downtown, too, had her Writing, the art of bringing abstract ideas into reality, was being stressed this year. Vocabulary words were placed in minds to be used as references in the future. Subjects, verbs, objects, prepositional phrases, the building blocks from which sentences are developed, were learned and mastered. Simple sentences were combined to form the more involved complex sentence and then — The Five Paragraph Paper.

The class of creative writing offered an outlet for life's hostilities by breaking down the walls of formal writing. But, before any paper could be drawn together, an idea had to be born. These ideas were usually based on various books, short stories and plays students were required to read.

To be,
or not to be...

Mary K. ...

Besides the classics, Scarlet Letter, Hamlet and Beowulf, students delved into other aspects of writing like science fiction and satire. Freshmen mastered the basic paragraph paper while sophomores tackled the more difficult five paragraph paper. Juniors used their collected knowledge to write a semester research paper and seniors combined all their years of hard work and added speed to writing

Increasing reading skills

Vicki Marino searches for her next reading assignment

Speed Reading and Developmental Reading aided in many students studies this year. Besides increasing the speed at which students read, comprehension was also increased. The speed reading course lasted about six weeks and was offered to students in study hall. Min courses were also offered to English students by teacher recommendation only. Drill books and pacing machines were used to improve skills. After taking speed reading, the average student was able to triple and sometimes even quadruple his reading speed

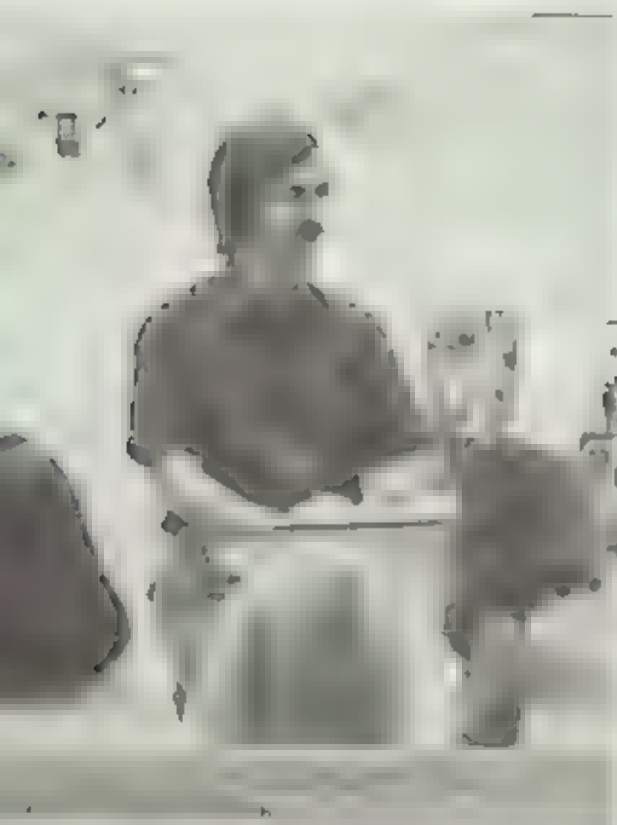

J-1 students greeted journalism with enthusiasm. The prospect of starting their own radio and television station here at Westchester sent spirits soaring.

The Freedom of the Press unit found students working diligently on oral reports and visual aids. Hurricane Louise, another project, was found to have hit Westchester several times, destroying the entire school.

J-1 classes were not the only journalism students working hard. Both the newspaper and yearbook staffs worked many long hours putting out the el Gato and the Miacis.

All of the journalism students were able to learn journalistic technique while still having fun.

Drama students put into action the many skills of theater production. First year students performed monologues and studied many aspects of stage designs. Drama II students explored the early Greek theater and directed fellow students after learning the basic skills of stage direction. All students took part in the production of Lil' Abner.

Arguing up a storm

When the Westchester debate squad was not successfully competing at local, state or national tournaments, they were undergoing hours of research and preparation.

Unlike many other activities, debate lasts all year. New interpretations of the debate topic force debaters to work on research all year. The debate topic, "Should the development and allocation of scarce world resources be controlled by an international organization?" caused debaters to research everything from starvation to energy. First-year debaters worked on theory, speaking, oratory, and research with the help of experienced debaters.

Dabbling in dialects

The foreign language department offered four courses this year: Spanish, French, German, and Latin. Along with basic language skills, students learned about the respective cultures. Spanish, French, and German sponsored Triad Competition. Students from all Spring Branch schools competed in several events including bicycle racing. Latin also sponsored the Roman games.

American History classes played the stock market, researched historical monuments, and placed emphasis on the recent past with a detailed section on the fifties and sixties. World History studies dove into the prehistoric era and Medieval Europe as classes viewed the films, "Nicholas and Alexander" and "Day in the Life of Ivan Donisovich."

Seniors study the foundation

Senior government students discovered the structure of national government and the cycles in business. Seniors prepared income tax forms, played the Stock Market, and reviewed the roles of local government.

Other students studied the Bible with a quarter course, Comparative Religion covering the five major religions of the world.

Sociology — a social science devoted to the scientific study of human groups. This is what this year's sociology students studied. They also enjoyed a special extra this year by experiencing a field trip to various institutions. In addition, students played games to simulate real life situations. Such games were Riot, a prison breakout situation, and Lifeboat, a life and death decision game. The whole point of sociology is to help the student better understand himself, his surroundings and the rest of the world. After just a quarter or more of the course students feel and are prepared for the world.

Key to a healthy future

How to handle a medical emergency was just one of the many useful tactics learned in health. Students learned basic first aid and how to report and handle all kinds of accidents. In addition, students learned good nutrition and how to balance their diets. Students enjoyed the use of many visual aids, such as filmstrips, movies and posters, plus many interesting and informative speakers. The most memorable practice learned by students this year was by far, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. No one will forget their first encounter with Resusi-Annie, the practice dummy.

Gym classes stressed the idea of co-educational P.E. . . . boys and girls played softball, golf, archery and volleyball together. No longer 2 9 classes divided. Unsurprisingly, the enrollment for gym as an elective is higher this year than ever before. Not only does gym give an opportunity to exercise but also gives a chance to get along with others in a competitive spirit and to be a good sport in every thing one does.

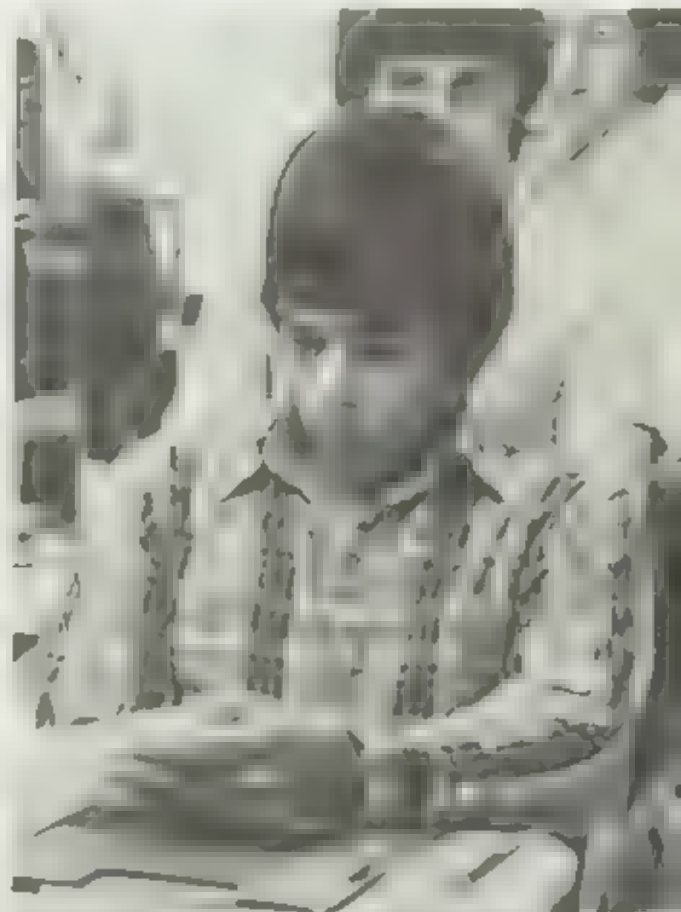

Students participate in tournaments

Tournaments were the main activities for math students. Several students attended tournaments all over Texas bringing back numerous awards.

Those students not participating in tournaments were offered courses such as Geometry, Algebra, Trigonometry, and Elementary Analysis. Those wishing to further their knowledge could also take Consumer Math, Computer Math, and Calculus.

Making Math move

The math lab obtained a new Hewlett Packard 9810 this year. Similar to the old computer, the 9810 has alphabetical lettering to further increase its usefulness. The lettering enabled students to run completed programs with a greater understanding of the program.

Another new face was teacher Sandra Redfearn. Mrs. Redfearn replaced Susan Schmidt after Christmas. A graduate of Texas A&M, she student taught here during the first quarter.

With the addition of two new teachers, Mrs. Mary Sanders and Mrs. Louise Compis, also came a series of new programs for homemaking students. Students held parties for elementary children, showing them how to make simple dishes and how to clean up the mess. With an increase in the number of boys enrolled in cooking, boys learned how to cook, clean, plan and run their own kitchens along with the girls

Communicating through music

The music department consists of three groups — the orchestra, band and the choir. Each of the bands attended a numerous amount of contests such as Corpus Christi and Sea Arama. The orchestra also attended in Amarillo. The choir gave several concerts and also appeared on Channel 26. All three organizations attended UIL Solo and Ensemble contest to end the year on a winning note.

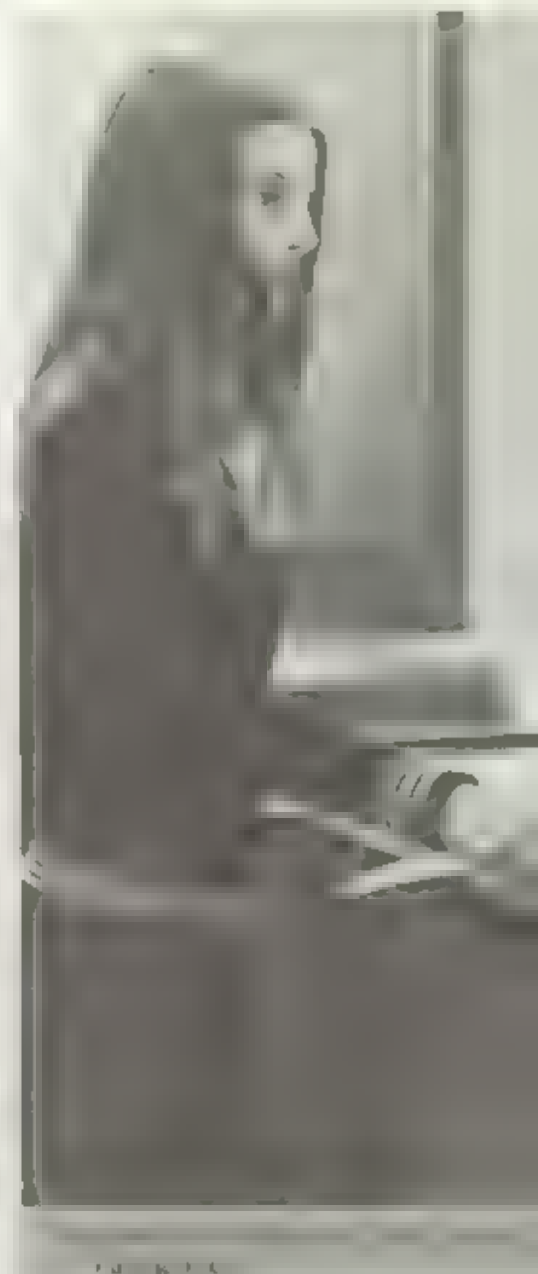

D.E. and V.O.E. provided students with a new kind of practical education. Students attended school in the morning and worked in the afternoon. Most of the jobs involved secretarial work. In the classroom, students learned the correct way to answer the telephone, filing, and many other skills. These two courses gave students the opportunity to learn new skills and apply them. One student said, "It's great experience. It makes you into a well rounded person."

Opportunity knocks

Vocational opportunities

The Career Center continued to train students for immediate employment upon graduation. This year students were offered a new course, Small Engine Repair. Classes learned to repair motorcycles, lawnmowers, and other small engines. The Career Center maintained a reputation of excellence where graduating students were qualified for job placement and higher salaries.

Clicking machines and the sound of rolling wheels filled both the physics and the physical science rooms this year. Physical science as a combination of both physics and chemistry, served as a preparation to underclassmen for the later more difficult course. Physical science classes learned the fundamental laws of physics, whereas the actual class of physics developed these laws farther and used them in today's world. Many students felt true interest in physics and it was shown by the increased number of students enrolled in each class. Mr. Bill Franklin, a physics teacher expressed the feeling that his classes ceased being an ordinary subject and became a true experience.

Biology covered the concepts of organic systems such as the reproductive and digestive system. Biology involved a great deal of lab work which prepared the student for higher sciences. Four new welders were added to the Industrial Arts department this year. Students turned in something at the end of every six weeks. Many of their projects ranged from paper weights and candlesticks to belt buckles. Drafting also takes good equipment. Each student must purchase his own mechanical drawing set. Every drawing takes a long time with accurate measurements. The students did general drawings but many got to design their own houses and buildings

"Pottery is fun but messy," says Karen

With all the Bicentennial projects going on, of course the art department had them, too. They were booked up painting fireplugs for all the neighborhoods. Also, all students had a project of any media due on the theme "Spirit of '76" or "Miracle of America." A big thing this year in the Art III and IV classes was jewelry. The objects were cast in silver or gold with the help of the new centrifuge. This year two students had their work qualify for nationals in New York. The year ended with the annual art show with displays in the gym.

"Don't tell me I've done it wrong again," sighs Maureen Kenney

I have felt a freshman's unique newness
and enthusiasm to experience and understand all, but I have also felt the terrible awkwardness of being the new kid and not fitting in or really knowing anything about anything

I have learned how to play all those childish games in order to stand out among my peers,

but finally realized the cost of damaged egos and lost friends

I have learned to respect my teachers and have felt the need and importance of being respected by them

I have learned how to break out of school when I begin to feel like a prisoner and how to get in when I've forgotten something

I have been done in by fatal grading curves, forgotten Saturday's and the library delinquency list . . .

But really even if I did wish a thousand times
to be anywhere else
but here,
I realize now,
that for me this was the only place to be.

Juniors

The class of '77. Driver's licenses, class rings, and a spirit of growing together hit the juniors as they suddenly realized they were upper classmen, destined to remain at Westchester only 2 more short years. The class sold carnations and bumper stickers to collect funds for their prom, held April 31 in the Houston Club.

A LIST OF STUDENTS WHOSE NAMES ARE NOT IN THE YEARBOOK

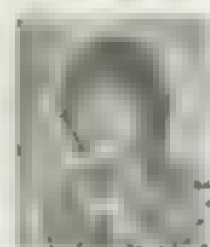

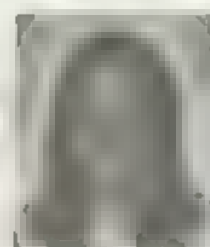

THESE STUDENTS WERE NOT IN THE YEARBOOK

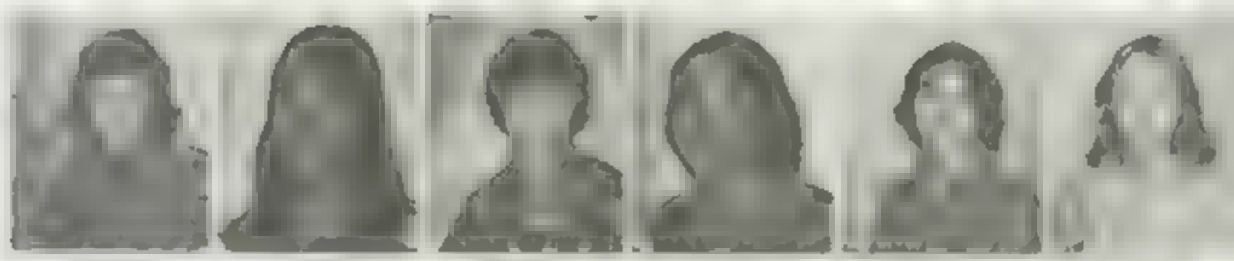

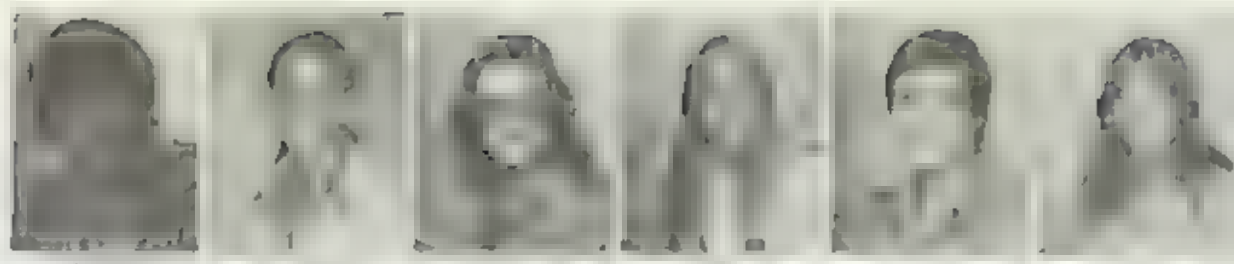

NAME

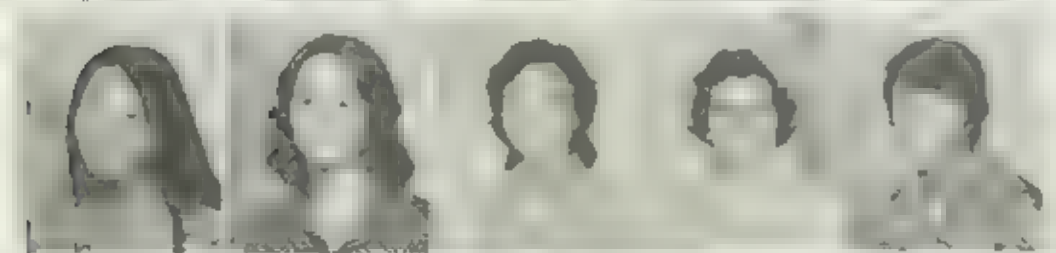

Kyle Anderson, Justin Brown, Kyle Lee, Justin Brown, Kyle Lee

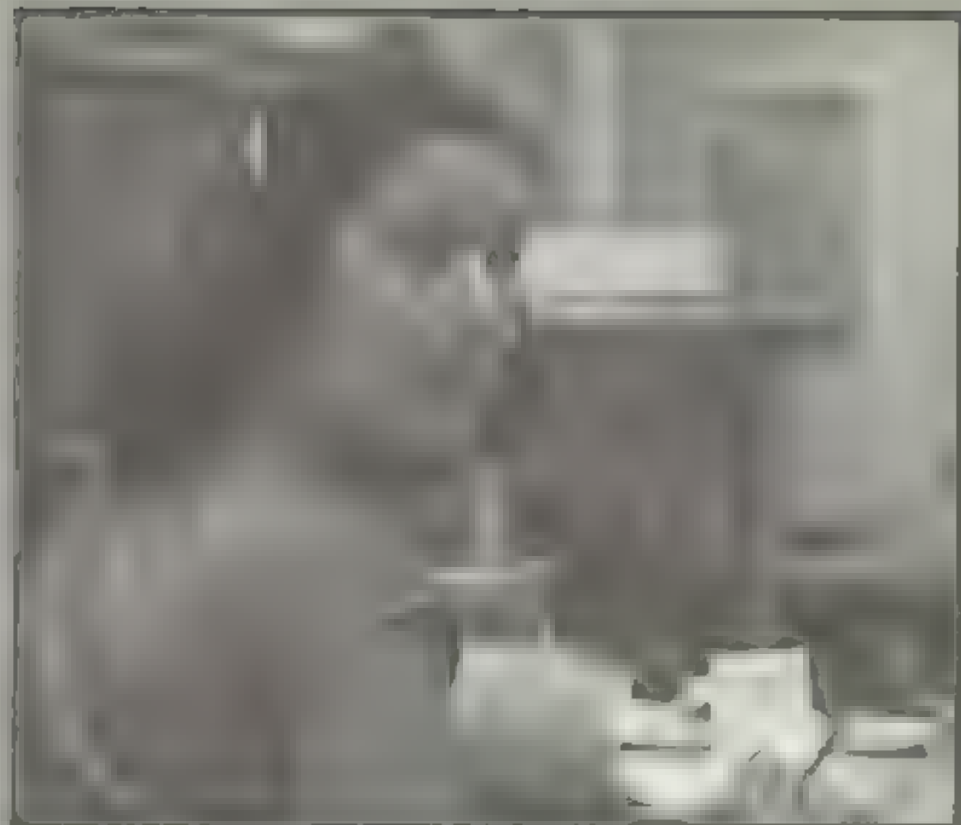

Hey let all those who are looking for a new friend, look no further than these three.

Now what new guy's looking for a B.F.?

Sophomores

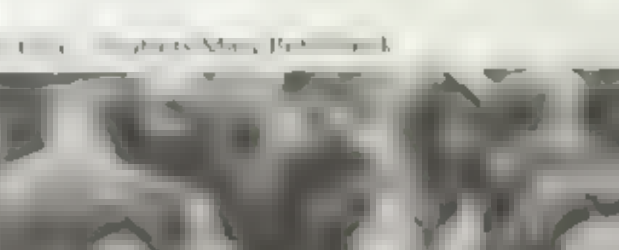

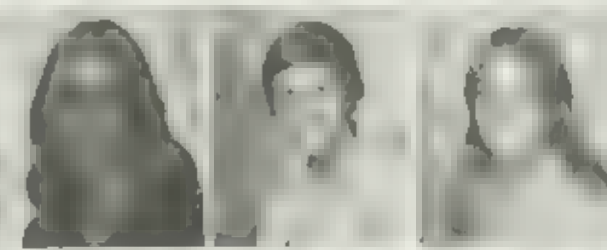

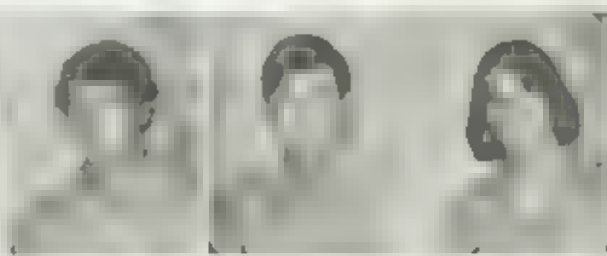

Even as the class of '78, the Sophomores felt the spirit of '76. They participated in activities ranging from donut sales to sock hops. They were a lively bunch that showed their enthusiasm in each activity. The year passed quickly with its good times and bad but in years to come the Sophomores of '78 will have lots to remember

Pat Shannon — Boys P E

Although he has only been at West chester for two years, Pat has really gotten involved in the Physical Education Program. He was a member of the football team this year and then entered a P E class for the rest of the year. Pat believes he enjoys P E, so much because it gives him a chance to strive for perfection and stay physically fit at the same time.

Beckie Mallet — Business

Being a business honor student is not as easy as it sounds. It requires outside time to practice typing and shorthand skills. Beckie has taken Typing I and II, Clerical Practice, and Shorthand, all of which she uses on her job. Business comes easily to Beckie and she plans to minor in it at Sam Houston State with a major in nursing.

Craig Siegal — Science

Being number one in the class and getting the Science honor award is a lot to accomplish in one year, but Craig did it. Besides those awards, Craig received the Chemistry IK award his sophomore year and went to UIL Science district competition his junior year. He also entered the Houston Science Fair last year with his hormone injected oysters project.

Robert Draper — English

Robert has been involved with the English Department for the last four years. He has been in debate for three years. Besides winning several first place trophies, this is the third year in a row he has qualified for state tournament. Robert likes English because it's easy for him and he enjoys expressing himself verbally and in writing. His written self-expression can be found on the editorial page of the el Gato of which he is assistant editor. Writing is in Robert's future since he plans to attend Berkeley in California, major in English, and later become a writer.

Kate Herrmann — Social Studies

Social Studies is Kate's favorite subject. She is very interested in political science, social work and law. She has been a member of the debate squad for two years and has won several awards in extemporaneous and oratory speaking. Extemporaneous speaking is her favorite competition as it involves current events. Kate was the sole representative from Westchester chosen to compete for a civics scholarship.

National Merit Semi-Finalists

National Merit Semi-Finalists are determined by their superior PSAT scores. The semi-finalists must then submit an essay, recommendations by the school and their PSAT scores to the National Merit Association. These applications are then reviewed to determine the finalists.

DAR Award

Daughters of American Revolution

Edie Wall received the DAR award this year for her qualities of leadership, citizenship and her interest in studying American History. It was also based on teacher recommendations and a questionnaire on the government today.

Top Ten

Craig Siegal First

Besides being captain of the team, Craig was a two year letterman in swimming prior to his senior year. He did not pre-arrange his schedule to become valedictorian he just used his head! Rice is possibly Craig's college choice because he is very interested in medicine

Steve Smith Second

Being a very creative person, Steve is into the arts of music and writing. Besides having played clarinet in the marching band for four years, he teaches kids to play bells and sings in the choir at church. Creative Writing is his favorite class. Steve plans to attend Haverford near Philadelphia and major in chemistry

Linda Sheriff Third

Linda stays busy being involved in school activities. She is Treasurer of JETS, Vice President of Mu Alpha Theta, and feature writer for the el Gato. Linda would like to attend Duke in the fall

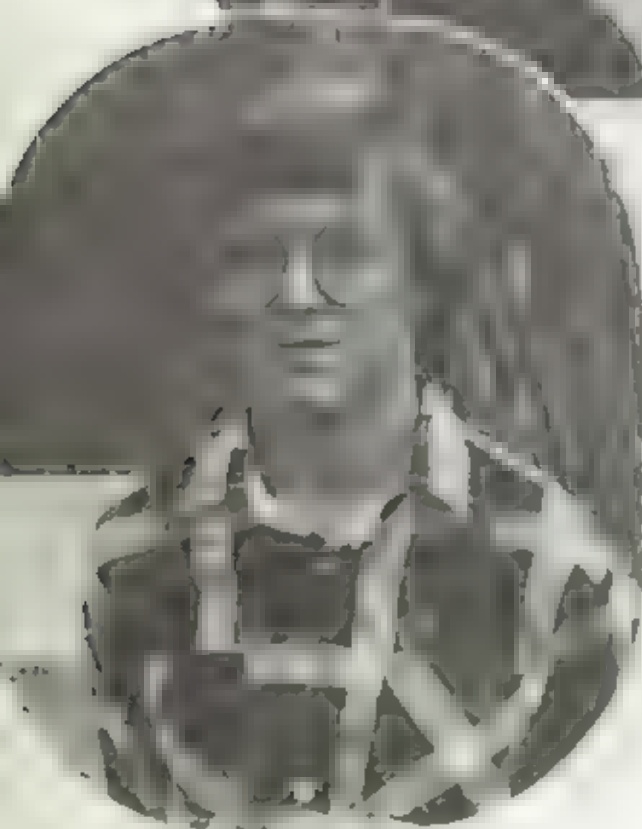

Jane Moomaw Fifth

Jane is a member of the club set. She belongs to Tri-Theta, Keyettes, Mu Alpha Theta, and is Secretary/Treasurer of English Honor Society. Even though she belongs to these clubs, Jane still finds time for dancing and playing both the guitar and piano

Newell Dutton Fourth

Newell is a two-year track man and an all-around outstanding student. During his sophomore year, he won the English II Honor Award. Newell is a member of the Senior Boys Club and JETS Science Club. Besides running track, he enjoys basketball and tennis. After graduation, Newell would like to pursue a medical career

Diane June — sixth

Diane has no problem keeping herself in shape! She has been a member of the Wranglerettes for three years and takes a class in gymnastics. She belongs to JETS, Mu Alpha Theta and is Treasurer of National Honor Society. Along with all these other activities, Diane also has time for piano and her favorite subject, science. She will probably go to Texas A&M, unsure of her major.

Beth Walker — seventh

Band is Beth's favorite class and she's been in the marching band playing her clarinet, for four years at Westchester. She is one of the very few girls who take drafting, but the ratio of boys to girls doesn't bother her. Beth is fluent in Spanish and would like to major in languages at the University of Texas.

Dan Carley — ninth

Dan is a real traveler. Give him a bicycle and he can go anywhere! Besides biking in his off campus time, he is a three year member of Jr Achievement. On his campus time, Dan enjoys Physics II and being a three year member of the marching band. Dan's ambition in life is to be a civil engineer.

Rod Nygaard — eighth

Clubs are what Rod is into, all the way! He's President of JETS and Mu Alpha Theta, Secretary of Westchester Science Fiction Society and Editor of Tanstaaf!, the science fiction newspaper. Rod would like to major in astronomy, a favorite hobby, or biology but is undecided on college.

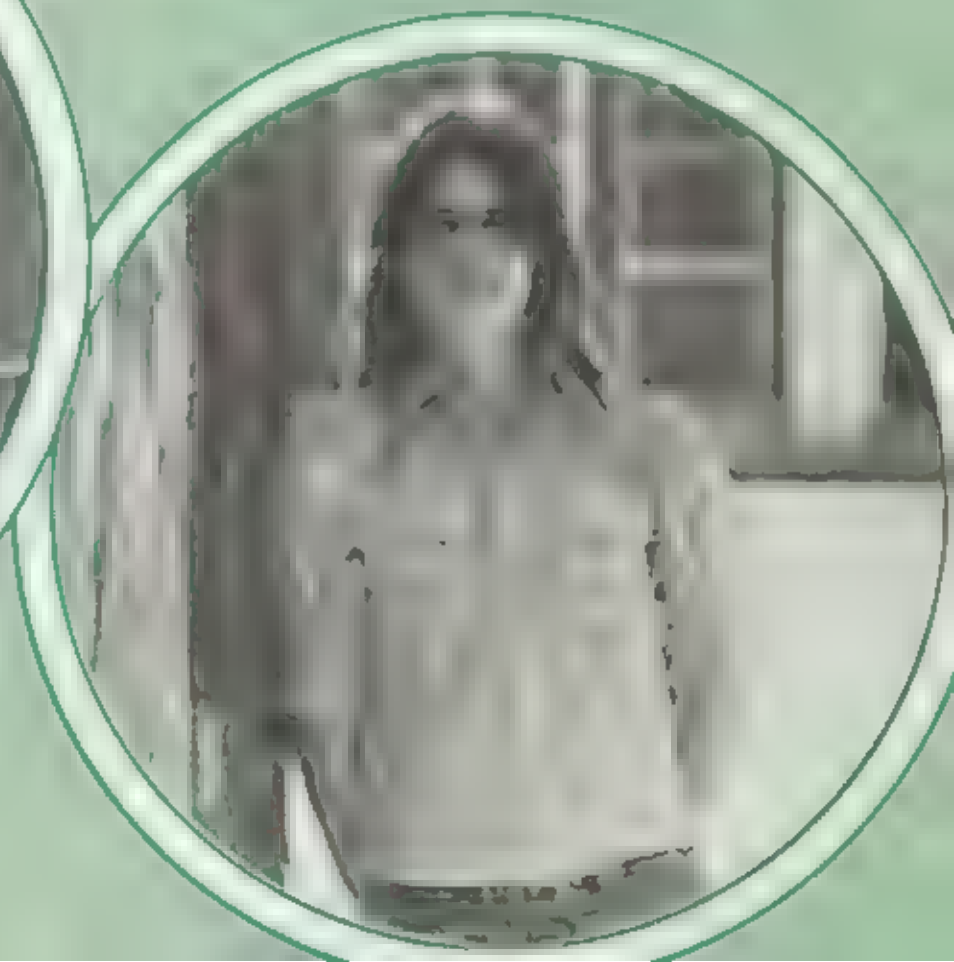

Leslie Clark — tenth

Leslie spends most hours away from school, working. But if she's not there, you can probably find her wrapping houses or working at a Westchester game as an avid member of Tri-Theta. Leslie plans to major in science at either Colorado State or Texas A&M.

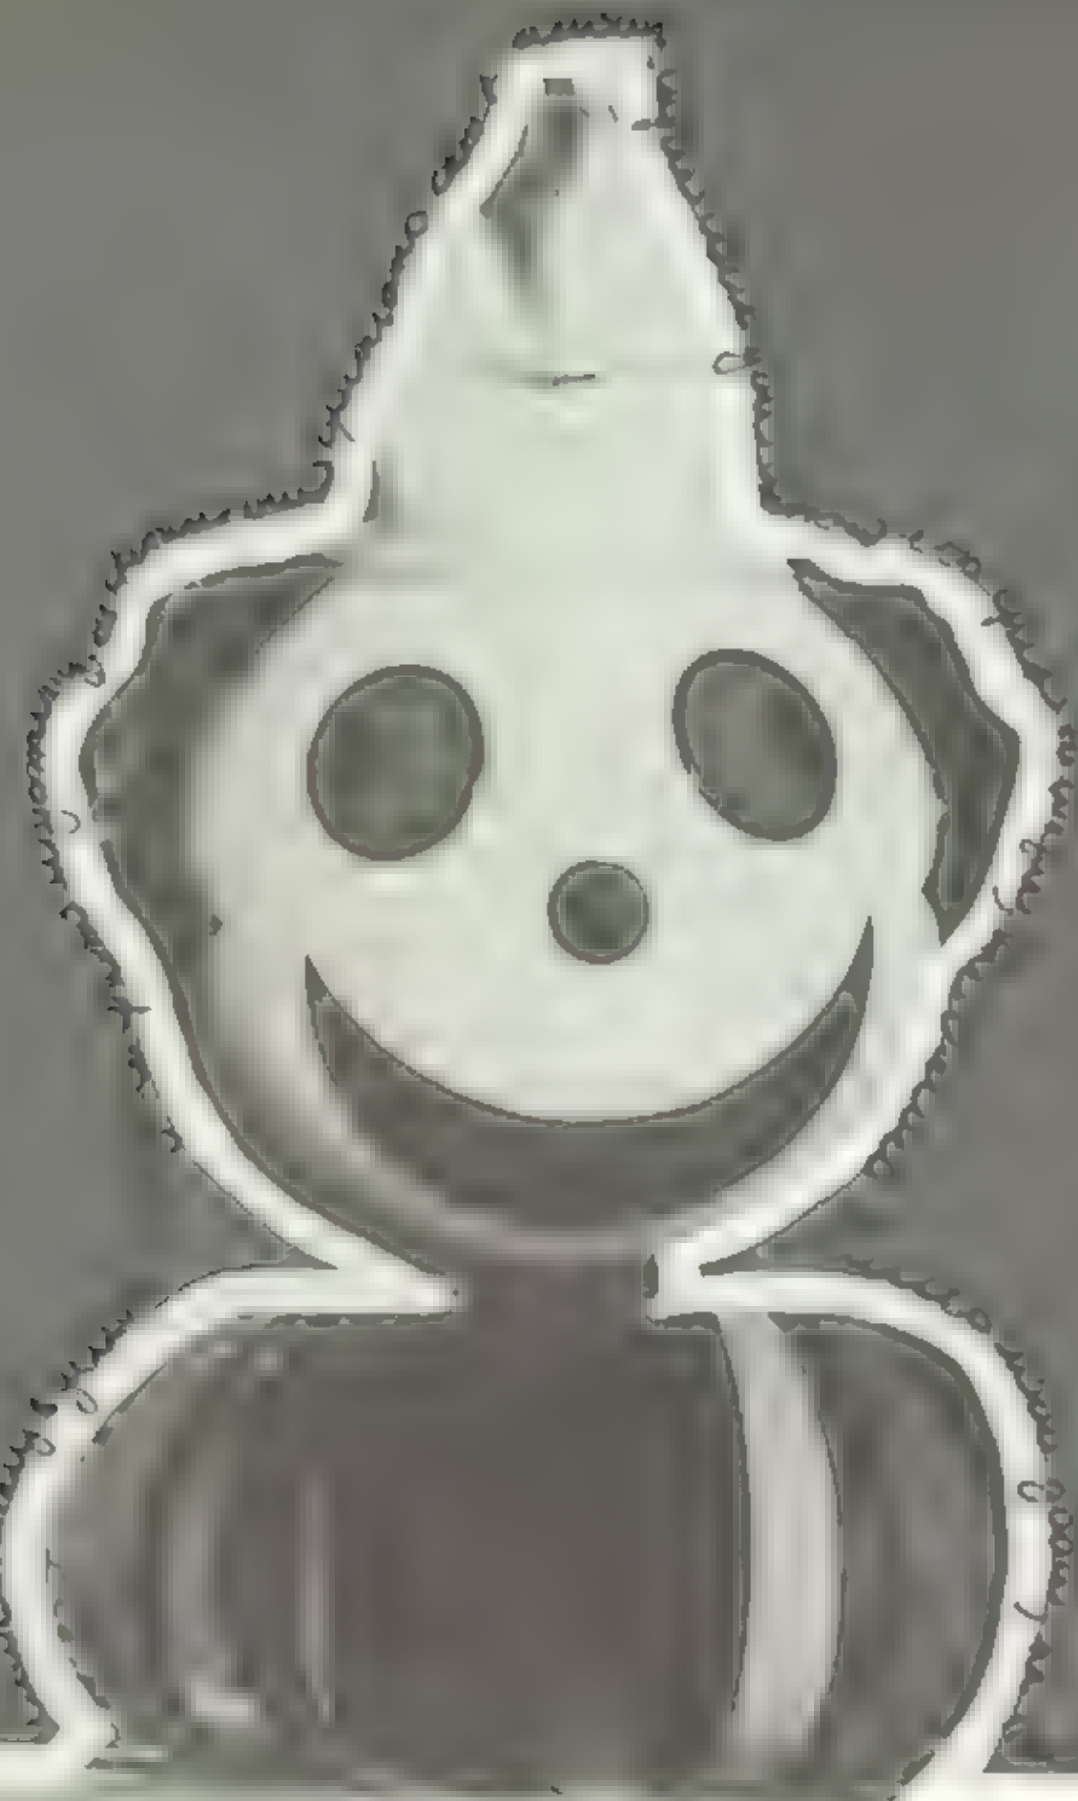

Handwritten note: I am a typical high school student. I like to play sports and hang out with my friends. I am a member of the JETS and Mu Alpha Theta. I am also a member of the Westchester Science Fiction Society. I am the Editor of Tanstaaf! the science fiction newspaper. I would like to major in astronomy, a favorite hobby, or biology but I am undecided on college.

In 1776, it was purpose and persistence. Now we're working for energy independence. On this 200th anniversary of our national independence we have a renewed determination. To keep our heritage and the great dreams and the struggles to achieve and maintain them. Proud is the greatest turning point in that history was the Civil War—when our country was ripped apart by that most severe test of the American fiber.

America's petroleum industry began at the same time men were fighting the battles of Pickett's Charge, Gettysburg. And today, Atwood Oceanics is proud of that test of national unity and purpose by naming its oceangoing drilling rigs after those famous battles.

Around the world, Atwood Oceanics rigs are working to find oil beneath the seas—working to give America a future of energy independence. It takes purpose, and action . . . and people . . . to do it right.

Westchester Senior High School. The name connotes a place and time. One of six high schools in the Spring Branch School District, it is located in a modern suburb. People have migrated to this area looking for a 'better life' of no crime and few traffic problems. The Katy Freeway goes downtown to the east or west to San Antonio. Memorial Drive provides a route to every conceivable facility. This is a

Randy,

Although we were rid in to my classes together this year I still had something in common with people here. Coming back here after being gone 2 years was quite an experience and I'm glad I wasn't the only one who had to do good luck next year and I be seeing ya on the wilderness trip probably this summer.

It's been 3 years since the last time I saw you.

a motorcycle. I never did get to it. I expect you to have summer and take me for a ride. Have fun at school next year and be careful!

Hey Old man,
So have much enjoyed your friendship this year. What I've learned through you is that I can't make impressions on people without knowing them. I thought you were kind of weird until I got to know you. You're one of a kind and show it off, you have a right you and its a sin if you show someone else to the world. By continuing being yourself and everything else will fall into place. Thanks for being a good egg in Physics and E.A. and Campaigners.
